WESTERN WORLD PLANE DEFENSE URGED BY FLYER

End of 'Hysterical Chatter' Demanded.

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—Calling for an end to "hysterical chatter of calamity and invasion," Col. Charles A. Lindbergh told the American people tonight that they need have no fear of attack unless they bring it on thru quarreling and meddling with affairs abroad.

The coöperation of western hemisphere nations would make simple the air defense of America, Lindbergh said in a nation-wide broadcast. The speech was made on the eve of the 13th anniversary of the start of his flight from New York to Paris.

Cites Need of Policy.

Lindbergh said that until America has decided upon a definite defense policy the mere construction of large numbers of aircraft will not be adequate for national safety.

"If we desire peace," he said, "we need only stop asking for war. No one wishes to attack us, and no one is in a position to do so."

The famous flyer said no air force possesses bombers capable of round trip flights across the Atlantic ocean and said a foreign power could conquer the United States only if bombers were accompanied by an invading army. Transportation of forces by air is of great significance in Europe, he said, but not in America.

Danger Termed Internal.

"Our danger in America is an internal danger," he said. "We need not fear a foreign invasion unless American peoples bring it in thru their own quarreling and meddling with affairs abroad."

Lindbergh advised coöperation with neighbor nations so South American bases could be used for defensive bombers and said it was imperative that the United States adopt definite defense policies before embarking on vast increases in arms.

He said an adequate defense program with western hemisphere nations would require that their foreign policy have some relationship to that of the United States.

"We cannot hold this hemisphere free from foreign war if nations which lie within it declare war on foreign powers," he said.

TEXT OF ADDRESS.

The text of the flyer's address follows:

"In times of war and confusion, it is essential for our people to have a clear understanding of the elements upon which our national safety depends. Aviation has now become one of these elements, and it is about the air defense of America that I speak to you tonight.

"The power of aviation has been greatly underrated in the past. Now, we must be careful not to overrate this power in the excitement of reaction. Air strength depends more upon the establishment of intelligent and consistent policies than upon the LONDON, May 19 (AP).—Intermittent gunfire and occasional heavy explosions were heard tonight as German aircraft again appeared off the southeast coast of England. Heavy gunfire also was heard from across the English channel and shells could be seen bursting in the sky.

PARIS, May 19.—In a giant and furious effort to extend the German "pocket" westward, Nazi motorized columns today launched their principal attacks in the region northeast of St. Quentin. French troops, aided by British reinforcements, put up a stiff resistance and counterattacked at certain points.

This bitter action—a seesaw battle—raged as France made a change in its high command. Gen. Maxime Weygand, until now head of France's near eastern army, was given Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin's place as commander in chief of all allied land forces.

The Germans attacked on other fronts than that in the St. Quentin sector, but the main effort was westward and chiefly in the region west of Avesnes, Guise and Vervins. Military observers interpreted this to mean that for the moment, at least, the Germans are concentrating their main push in a westwardly direction toward the English channel, rather than toward the capital.

Fight on Edge of City.

A war office spokesman told of fighting between small advance units of the German army on the edge of St. Quentin and said larger groups of the belligerents were battling "in the woods outside of the town."

[The Germans reported their troops had captured St. Quentin and driven beyond it. They also claimed that allied forces "were being pursued on the entire front."]

The German army held St. Quentin, a textile manufacturing city 80 miles northeast of Paris, from Aug. 1914, to Oct. 1, 1918, in the world war.

The Nazis, it was believed, had thrown a full corps of tanks estimated at about 60,000 men, into the conflict in the St. Quentin sector.

British Mechanized Units.

The brunt of the battle in this region was borne by the French, but they were aided by the British. Further, it was stated British mechanized units were streaming across northern France to take their places tomorrow or Tuesday with the French troops.

The French, it was reported, counterattacked in the Maubeuge region, 15 miles north of Landrecies and within 10 miles of the French-Belgian border. A number of positions were recaptured, it was said. At the southern extremity of the German thrust, near Rethel, the French likewise were reported to have retaken several villages.

Britain to Call Million Women for War Jobs

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—Great Britain today prepared to appeal to at least a million women to take jobs in factories producing munitions to combat the aerial blitzkrieg Adolf Hitler threatens to begin against the country.

Plans for the appeal will be discussed at an emergency meeting of employers and engineering unions to consider rates of pay and conditions of work. It is estimated that 4,000,000 women must be recruited for jobs in armament and airplane factories, shipyards, and engineering shops before Britain's war output is raised to the scale of 1918.

Unions Relax Opposition.

Unions and leaders of women's organizations have demanded safeguards against employment of women as cheap labor. Premier Winston Churchill's appointment of Ernest Bevin, trade union leader, as minister of labor, and developments on the western front, however, have caused the unions to show signs of relaxing their demands.

Since September, it is estimated, more than 40,000 women have joined the fighting forces as auxiliaries and thousands more have become air raid precautions workers. Six thousand now are working on the land, many more are engaged in textile and aircraft manufactures and government service, and hundreds of thousands of housewives thruout the country are looking after children evacuated from the towns.

New Appeal to Women.

New appeals for women to join the national service were issued this week-end. The government asked women cooks, clerks, stenographers, and telephone operators to join the air force; several thousand auto drivers, cooks, clerks, and storekeepers to serve in the army; 25,000 more women and girls to work the land, and 40,000 nurses to join the civil nursing reserve to deal with air raid casualties. As the women take jobs, men will be freed for fighting and essential war work.

Three members of the new Churchill administration, Bevin, Herbert Morrison, minister of supply, and Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, are formulating plans to expand the nation's output of war materials, absorb the unemployed, and set in motion the machines and tools of factories now standing idle.

Consider Three More Moves.

Besides recruiting women for war jobs, they are considering the following moves:

1. Creation of new machinery for the distribution of skilled labor.
2. Extension of training facilities in workshops with a view to absorbing nearly a million unemployed workers.
3. Diversion of workers from luxury trades to the arms industry by prohibiting the manufacture of non-essentials and luxury goods except for export.

Premier Churchill is reported preparing to set up a single department to organize war production in coöperation with the three ministers. This would mean that the system of separating the needs of the three fighting services, operated under former Premier Neville Chamberlain, would end.

London newspapers suggest that some form of industrial conscription soon will be adopted to set Britain's war factories going on a 24 hour basis.

Landon Fights Plan to Merge Two Tickets

Topeka, Kas., May 19 (AP).—Alf M. Landon, titular Republican party head, declared tonight that maintenance of ordinary democratic processes, including all political party functions, is doubly necessary in the face of the war crisis in Europe.

"Specifically, I am opposed to any suggestion that the Republican party postpone its national convention or lend itself to any coalition which would tend to decrease party responsibility," he said in an interview.

"We Republicans can best serve the cause of national unity by maintaining ourselves as a patriotic and constructive party of the opposition in the best tradition of popular government until we are voted into power by the election next November."

Will Lunch with Roosevelt.

Landon, Republican presidential candidate in 1936, leaves tomorrow for Washington. He will lunch at the White House Wednesday at the invitation of President Roosevelt.

"In this critical period," he said, "when free government is under attack in the world, it becomes doubly urgent that we in America safeguard and maintain the essential functions of democracy. The very bases of these functions are free elections and party responsibility.

"I cannot observe without great concern proposals that we voluntarily place some limitations upon these functions as the result of the acceleration of the war in Europe.

Scents Peril in Plan.

"I regard as dangerous any attempt to decrease the vitality of the two-party system as it operates in this country, or to obscure the meaning or purpose of the forthcoming party conventions and national election, whether that attempt comes directly or in the guise of a government by party allegiance in time of peace.

"We can and will achieve any necessary degree of national unity without impairing the normal operation of the conventions, the campaign and the election—the system by which the people themselves choose and support their leadership.

"All of us should avoid hysteria, keep our feet on the ground, and remain conscious of our opportunity to serve America and the world by strengthening the normal processes of democracy at home."

FLIGHT OF QUEEN STARTS BREAK OF DUTCH DEFENSE

Tribune Man Tells How Blitzkrieg Engulfed Nation.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BENTHEIM, Germany (On the Dutch Border) May 19.—This is the story of how the Netherlands fell into Hitler's hands in five and a half days. The Tribune correspondent was there and saw it happen.

The German blitzkrieg is not a joke. Holland was not caught off guard. She was expecting the attack when it came and had time to prepare for it. She was confident and unafraid. She fought with everything she had and courageously. Yet after 132 hours of war she capitulated and when I left Holland last night life there was practically normal.

Confidence Unjustified.

It is now quite clear that Dutch confidence was unjustified. The story of how Holland was conquered so quickly, however, is as much a study of psychology as military operations. The impact of the one upon the other was decisive.

I believe the military and naval commander in chief of Holland surrendered to the Germans because he felt he had been first deserted by his allies—that is the British—and then the queen. It was too much even for this gallant soldier, Gen. Henri Gerard Winkelman, to stomach.

I talked to him on Thursday, May 9, at midnight. He told me that he expected war in the morning.

Phone Lines Cut Off.

He was in The Hague and I was in Amsterdam. I haven't been able to see him since. Telephone communications were cut off after the first attack, which signaled the beginning of the war on the Netherlands at 3:15 a. m. Friday morning, May 10.

The Germans immediately attacked every airport in Holland. They dropped bombs. They opened up with machine guns. There was no doubt that these attacks were responsible for crippling the Dutch air force to the extent that a few hours later bombers flew leisurely over Amsterdam without any more resistance than that furnished by antiaircraft fire.

I have still to see a plane brought down by antiaircraft and certainly in the Amsterdam environs bursting shells were not even close.

Sees Airport Destroyed.

From the roof of the Hotel Carlton I saw the airport of Schiphol destroyed by German bombers about two hours after the war had started. Many Dutch flyers poised to engage bombers were destroyed on the ground before being able to take off.

This was repeated on numerous other Dutch airfields. In fact, it was admitted that on the first day the Germans had control of every important airport.

However, military developments were uncertain altho I knew from the flame and smoke coming out of the Schiphol airport and the bomb explosions I heard there and easily saw from the roof of the hotel that the airport had been destroyed and airplanes ready to take off had probably been destroyed and if not destroyed had been rendered useless.

HITLER ANNEXES DISTRICT TREATY GAVE TO BELGIUM

(Map on page 2.)

BERLIN, May 19.—Germany completed its first westward conquest today when Adolf Hitler reincorporated Eupen, Malmedy, and Moresnet into Germany proper. Germany had to relinquish these regions to Belgium after a plebiscite held under the provisions of the Versailles treaty in 1919.

Arthur Seyss-Inquart.

Thus one more chapter of the Versailles treaty was wiped out, leaving only parts of Schleswig-Holstein [to Denmark], Alsace-Lorraine [to France], and the German colonies as German claims. The Eupen-Malmedy district is an area of 384 square miles with a population of about 64,000.

Simultaneously with the return of Eupen and Malmedy, Germany extended its rule far beyond the confines of imperial Germany by establishing a commissar for the Netherlands to administer and direct this kingdom.

Consequently, German administrators today ruled with varying degrees of dictatorial powers in the Netherlands, in former Czecho-Slovakia, in Poland, Denmark, and in most of Norway.

The Nazis assert that it is just a matter of days until Belgium will be in German hands as it was in the days of the world war.

The post of commissar in rich Holland was awarded to Arthur Seyss-Inquart, the Austrian who helped undermine the power of the Austrian government from within and enabled Adolf Hitler to establish his rule in Austria. Seyss-Inquart recently had been deputy governor of German occupied Poland.

Communique Optimistic.

The first official communique was optimistic. The Dutch had not even been caught unawares and the enemy had been held on every important front. German aviation had suffered tremendous losses. It looks foolish now, but it might be remembered that the Dutch communique reported more than 100 German airplanes shot down the first day.

Then, too, there was the political front which not only had resisted every attack on the part of the enemy, but had made new advances into enemy territory. For instance, Queen Wilhelmina announced that under no circumstances would the government surrender or even "negotiate" with the enemy. Wilhelmina even went further. She would never step off Dutch soil as long as an inch of free territory remained in the Netherlands.

Told to Identify Voices.

Then the official radio urged the listeners to acquaint themselves with three official announcers. The Germans might broadcast false news on this wave length. Listeners were warned that any declaration that Holland had capitulated or even surrendered one city must be regarded prima facie as enemy propaganda.

Disquieting news had trickled into Amsterdam. There was fighting in The Hague and half of Rot-

'BLITZKRIEG WINS ALL ALONG LINE,' GERMANS CLAIM

Report Big Maginot Fort Taken by Storm.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 19.—The German people were told officially tonight that their troops advancing beyond St. Quentin are just 75 miles—in an air line—from Paris and that German troops which captured Laon are only 75 miles from Paris by road.

Special editions of Adolf Hitler's newspaper, the Voelkischer Beobachter, hailed the conquest of St. Quentin and Le Cateau. It said the enemy was "being pursued on the entire front" from occupied Antwerp and Brussels to the upper Oise river and from there on a line stretching to the southeast of Sedan toward Montmedy.

Fort Captured by Storm.

The German high command was elated over the capture of Fort No. 505 which it said was one of the first fortifications of the Maginot line proper. The fort is northwest of Montmedy. It was said Fort No. 505 was one of France's strongest. It was taken by storm. Attacking Germans threw their full force at the fort despite heavy defense fire, it was said. A lieutenant of a sappers' unit was decorated for special bravery during the conquest of the fort.

West of St. Quentin German troops were reported pressing toward the Somme river, presumably aiming toward the coast of the English channel.

It was asserted in Italian circles here that "when the German troops reach Calais, Mussolini will be able to overcome the resistance of the king of Italy, who does not want to enter the war, and the Italians then will fight on the side of Germany."

Claim 110,000 Prisoners.

The last Dutch soldiers fighting for the independence of their country ceased resistance today on the island of Walcheren. Consequently, with all of the Netherlands occupied, Hitler officially appointed Arthur Seyss-Inquart his commissar for Holland.

The high command said that not including prisoners taken in Holland, the Germans had taken 110,000 prisoners on the Belgian and French fronts and inflicted heavy casualties on the allied forces. It was also claimed that "countless artillery up to 28 centimeter [11 inch] guns have been captured."

Describing the positions of the front, the war communique said that in northern Belgium the Germans are pressing westward toward Ghent and have crossed the Scheldt river west of Antwerp and the Dendre river west of Brussels.

Main Battle at St. Quentin.

The main battle is raging on the front from Maubeuge, Le Cateau, and St. Quentin to La Fere and across to the Laon, Rethel, and Montmedy line. In the St. Quentin sector the German western army was reported to have crossed the Oise and Sambre rivers and on the south wing strong forces were said to have reached Laon and the Aisne river near Rethel.

With German troops getting nearer to Paris, Nazis again expressed hopes that in the "panic that is unavoidable the French population will compel the high command to give up its resistance." They believe that pro-Nazi elements which advocated an understanding with Germany for a number of years will seize the right moment to stir up the French people, who, it is asserted, "do not want to see another seige of Paris [as in 1870-'71], especially after they were made to feel the extraordinary strength of the German air force."

Almost hourly German radio stations are broadcasting in French trying to convince the French population that resistance is useless and that they should compel their government to break with England.

The Germans again made claims that the allied air forces were heavily damaged. It was said 147 planes were destroyed yesterday, 47 of them in air battles and 13 by German anti-aircraft. The Germans said their own losses were only 27 planes.

It was said 20 French Morane pursuit planes were shot down "by turns" in an air battle with German Messerschmitts near Tournai. German losses in this fight were put at six. In another combat 12 enemy planes were sent crashing to earth.

Surprise Planes on Field.

At a French airport at Vitry en Artois, German bombers were said to have surprised a great number of French planes tanking up, and at least 50 were destroyed, it was declared. At another airfield 16 French planes were reported destroyed.

At sea, it was said, German bombers sank a 6,000 ton merchant ship and damaged a destroyer off the French-Belgian coast and sank a 1,500 ton merchantman and a 6,500 ton transport off Narvik, Norway's arctic iron ore port.

Nazis reported that Nazi air scouters had sighted a heavy enemy cruiser stranded off Bodo, northern Norway. The cruiser was listing heavily and was guarded by enemy planes and one destroyer, DNB said.

The wreckage of a transport of 25,000 tons or more was discovered today off the Netherlands port of Flushing, it was said. The ship apparently had been broken in the middle by a mine.

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico, May 19 (AP).—Gen. He declared his opponents were trying to prevent an exposé of German-Russian activity even tho it constituted a serious threat to the western hemisphere.

to Montmedy. No change of importance has taken place in that area since the beginning of Germany's lightning drive.

[The Germans yesterday said their troops had captured a main fort in the Maginot line northwest of Montmedy.]

A military spokesman, commenting upon developments, said that "except in a sector of 60 miles of development [on the northwestern side of the pocket], the situation is not serious. It is on these sixty miles that the Germans are concentrating their motorized attacks. German progress has been seriously slowed up if it has not been entirely stopped."

Extensive Air Activity.

The French communique was devoted mostly to aviation activities. Pursuit planes and antiaircraft guns gave battle to German bombing planes, it said. One group of 15 German planes lost 10 of them during the day, the communique declared.

Judging from the official report, French and German soldiers engaged in mortal combat near Bony, the French village where 6,000 soldiers of the American expeditionary force are buried.

Just how near the battle came to these A. E. F. graves cannot be stated. However, the communique said the principal fighting took place in the region northeast of St. Quentin, and Bony is in this region. The American soldiers buried there were killed 22 years ago.

Britons Battle Fascist Chief; Break Up Rally

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—Ten thousand angry demonstrators in Middleton, Lancashire, today broke up an open air meeting of Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union Fascists, which has opposed the war. When Mosley attempted to address the crowd from a truck he was booed and pelted with stones, paper balls, and bundles of pamphlets. The British Fascist leader leaped down and became involved in a fight. Police quelled the disturbance with clubs as many women fainted. Other fights took place when thousands assembled outside the Fascist committee rooms.

Weygand, Disciple of Foch, Named to Command Allies

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

PARIS, May 19.—Gen. Maxime Weygand, a disciple of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, was named commander in chief by the French government tonight. He took over immediately the job of coping with Adolf Hitler's invasion of northern France.

Gen. Maurice Gamelin.

An announcement from the Elysée palace stated that President Albert Lebrun had signed a decree naming Gen. Weygand to the post which, until now, has been filled by Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin. Weygand's new title is "chief of the national defense general staff and commander in chief of all theaters of military operations." His duties and responsibilities practically will be the same as those taken over 22 years ago by Marshal Foch, whose understudy Weygand was for many years.

Reynaud Confers with Petain.

The decision to replace Gen. Gamelin and to name Gen. Weygand, who is 73 years old, in his place was taken by Premier Paul Reynaud after a long conference with Weygand and Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, hero of Verdun, who yesterday was named minister of state and vice premier. So far there has been no inkling as to the post which will be given to Gen. Gamelin.

For almost a week rumors of Weygand's impending appointment have been circulated assiduously in Paris, but confirmation was not forthcoming until tonight.

When German troops broke thru the French lines and formed what Reynaud called "a large pocket," public opinion was stirred deeply, and the premier promised that to handle the situation "new methods and new men" would be used. Weygand is the new man chosen by Reynaud, and he will be expected to introduce the new methods which will bring victory.

Choice Well Received.

French military observers tonight expressed deep satisfaction over his appointment. Gen. Weygand has devoted his life to the French army, and was its peacetime head from 1931 to 1935.

Gen. Weygand was born in Brussels in 1867, and thus was a foreigner in France. He attended St. Cyr, the French military school, as a "student of foreign nationality." It was not until he was 20 years old that he became a French citizen. His army career began in 1888 when he entered the service as a second lieutenant of cavalry.

A Colonel in 1914.

He was promoted thru the various grades until, at the beginning of the world war, he became a colonel. Assigned to the general staff, he was chief of staff of one of the armies and in 1916 was made chief of staff of the armies under Foch, and went with the French generalissimo when the latter was promoted to head all the allied armies in the dark spring of the war's last year.

The two were inseparable and Weygand became known as Foch's "shadow."

Weygand was the one sent to aid the Poles under Marshal Pilsudski when the Russians were at the gates of Warsaw, altho the Poles had asked for Foch. With Weygand's aid the Poles were victorious.

From 1923 to June, 1924, Weygand was French high commissioner of Syria. When the present war began he was brought out of retirement and named commander in chief of the French military forces in the near east. He was recalled from that duty to accept the post as commander in chief.

GERMANY MOVES HER TANK FORCE FROM SWISS LINE

BASEL, Switzerland, May 19 (AP).—German forces concentrated in Swiss frontier regions moved their armored cars and light tanks from the immediate border sector today, but where they went was a German secret.

Some observers expressed belief that the equipment had been sped northward toward the battlefields of Belgium and France. Others speculated that the move was a ruse to lead the French into sending their mountain forces into the northwestern battle.

The French countered by removing similar equipment from the immediate border. This, too, went to a secret destination.

Switzerland kept all of her forces mobilized.

CHINESE CAPTURE JAP BASE; CLAIM 12 PLANES DESTROYED

CHUNGKING, China, May 19 (AP).—The capture by Chinese forces of Sinyang, a major Japanese base in south Honan province, was claimed today by the Chinese government. It was announced that 12 Japanese planes and large supplies of ammunition were destroyed.

Central News, Chinese agency, reported that Lieut. Gen. Jutaro Amakuska, commander of the 23d Japanese division, was wounded severely in fighting in the Nanchang-Kwangsi sector last week.

An air raid alarm lasting six and a half hours resulted when six waves of Japanese warplanes, avoiding Chungking, bombed the outskirts of Chengtu, about 150 miles west, as well as Liuchow, Liangnasha, and Suifu.

GERMANY GAINS VAST SUPPLIES IN NEW CONQUESTS

BERLIN, May 19.—Germans today took stock of the economic advantages attained thru the conquest of the Netherlands, Belgium, and Luxemburg. Among the supplies acquired are several million tons of Luxemburg iron ore and large stocks of raw materials and coffee and tobacco in the ports of Amsterdam, Rotterdam, and Antwerp.

In addition, there is the possibility of increasing imports of Dutch dairy products by the quantities heretofore exported to Britain. With the British cut off from Scandinavia, the Baltic states, and the Low Countries, only Ireland, Spain, and Portugal remain as the west European neutral countries easily accessible to Britain.

In conquering Luxemburg the Germans took a country representing one big iron ore mine and steel mill. The duchy's annual iron ore output averages eight million tons, the possession of which should enable the reich to fill an important gap in the raw material base of its war industries.

MALTA SEIZES 'FIFTH COLUMN' NAZI SUSPECTS

VALETTA, Malta, May 19.—A number of Maltese men suspected of being German "fifth columnists" were interned today on this British owned island after a roundup in which police raided private homes.

The prisoners included professional men, civil service employés, and dockyard workers. Crowds cheered the police and booed at the arrested men.

A special volunteer constabulary is being formed to protect Malta against any invasion by parachute troops. The force will consist of farmers and sportsmen holding gun licenses.

CHURCHILL VOWS TO WAGE TOTAL WAR ON GERMANY

Says Britons Must Give 'Last Ounce.'

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19. — Winston Churchill, in his first broadcast as prime minister, told Great Britain tonight that this island and all it stands for will be Adolf Hitler's next objective. In somber tones he warned that the government will not hesitate to impose the most drastic sacrifices and squeeze the last ounce from both property and labor in this country to combat Germany.

Winston Churchill.

Admitting the gravity of the German break thru in France, the prime minister declared that the allied armies must cast away the idea of fighting behind concrete lines and realize that mastery can be regained only by furious, unrelenting assault. Churchill's statement on the situation on the western front, overthrowing preconceived theories of military strategists, coincided with an announcement to the British public that Gen. Maxime Weygand had been appointed allied commander-in-chief in all theaters of the war.

Talk Heard in U. S.

Millions in Britain, the empire, and America heard Churchill predict that as soon as the western front was stabilized a battle for England would begin. He announced a determination to fight until victory is achieved.

In what was interpreted in some quarters as an indirect bid for American support, Churchill stressed the argument that Britain is battling "in the cause of freedom."

Before making his speech, Churchill conferred with his war cabinet and the three chiefs of the fighting forces.

When parliament reassembles on Tuesday, the prime minister is expected to make a further statement on the war situation.

TEXT OF SPEECH

The text of his speech:

"I speak to you for the first time since becoming prime minister in a solemn hour in the life of our country, of our empire, of our allies, and above all, of the cause of freedom.

"A tremendous battle is raging in France and Flanders. The Germans, by a remarkable combination of their bombing and heavily armored tanks, have broken thru the French defenses north of the Maginot line and strong columns of their armored vehicles are ranging the open country, which for the first day or two was without defenders.

"They have penetrated deeply and spread alarm and confusion in their tracks. Behind them are now appearing infantry in lorries and behind them again the large masses are moving forward.

"The regroupment of the French armies to make head against, and also to strike at this intruding wedge, has been proceeding for several days, largely assisted by the magnificent efforts of the royal air force.

Sudden Turn Possible.

"We must not allow ourselves to be intimidated by the presence of these armored vehicles in unexpected places behind our lines. If they are behind our front, the French are also at many points fighting actively behind theirs. Both sides are therefore in an extremely dangerous position; and if the French army, and our own army, are well handled, as I believe they will be, and if the French retain that genius in recovery and counterattack, for which they have so long been famous; and if the British army shows the dogged endurance and solid fighting power of which there have been so many examples in the past, then a sudden transformation or the scene might spring into being.

"But it would be foolish, however, to disguise the gravity of the hour. It would be still more foolish to lose heart and courage or to suppose that well trained, well equipped armies numbering three or four millions of men can be overcome in the space of a few weeks, or even months, by a swoop, or raid, of mechanized vehicles, however formidable. We will look with confidence to the stabilization of the front in France, and to the general engagement of the Nazis, which will enable the qualities of the French and British soldiers to be matched squarely against those of their adversaries.

"For myself, I have invincible confidence in the French army and its leaders. Only a very small part of that splendid army has yet been heavily engaged, and only a very small part of France has yet been invaded. There is good evidence to show that practically the whole of the specialized and mechanized forces of the enemy have already been thrown into the battle, and we know that very heavy losses have been inflicted upon them.

"No officer or man, no brigade or division, which grapples at close quarters with the enemy wherever encountered, can fail to make a worthy contribution to the general result. The armies must cast away the idea of resisting attack behind concrete lines or natural obstacles, and must realize that mastery can only be regained by furious and unrelenting assault! And this spirit must not only animate the high command, but must inspire every fighting man.

New Confidence in Air.

"In the air, often at serious odds, often at odds hitherto thought overwhelming, we have been clawing down three or four to one of our enemies. And the relative balance of the British and German air forces is now considerably more favorable to us than at the beginning of the battle.

"In cutting down the German balance, we are fighting our own battle, as well as that of France. My confidence in our ability to fight it out to the finish with the German air force has been strengthened by the fierce encounters which have taken place and are taking place.

"At the same time, our heavy bombers are striking nightly at the tap root of German mechanized power, and already have inflicted horrible damage upon the oil refineries upon which the Nazi efforts to dominate the world directly depend.

"We must expect that soon as stability is reached on the western front, the bulk of that hideous apparatus of aggression which dashed Holland into ruin and slavery will be turned upon us. I am sure I speak for all when I say: We are ready to face it, to endure it, and to retaliate against it to any extent that the unwritten law of the war permits.

Pride in Share at Home.

"There will be many men and many women in this island who, when the ordeal comes upon them, as come it will, will feel comfort and even a pride that they are sharing the perils of our lads at the front—soldiers, sailors and airmen, God bless them—and are drawing away from them a part, at least, of the onslaught they have to bear. Is not this appointed task for all to make the utmost exertions in power?

"If the battle is to be won, we must provide our men with ever-increasing quantities of the weapons and ammunition they need. We must have, and have quickly, more airplanes, more tanks, more shells, more guns. There is imperious need for these vital munitions. They increase our strength against the powerfully armed enemy. They replace the wastage of the obstinate struggle, and the knowledge that wastage will speedily be replaced enables us to draw more readily upon our reserves and throw them in now that everything counts so much.

Battle for England Next.

"Our task is not only to win the battle but to win the war. After this battle in France abates its force, there will come the battle for our island, for all that Britain is, and all that Britain means. That will be the struggle. In that supreme emergency we shall not hesitate to take every step, even the most drastic, to call forth from our people the last ounce and the last inch of effort of which they are capable. The interests of property, the hours of labor are nothing compared to the struggle for life and honor, for right and freedom to which we have bound ourselves.

"I received from the chief of the French republic, and in particular from its indomitable prime minister, M. Reynaud, the most sacred pledges that whatever happens they will fight to the end, be it bitter or be it glorious; nay, if we fight to the end it can only be glorious.

One Bond Unites All.

"Having received his majesty's commission, I have formed an administration of men and women of every party and of almost every point of view. We have differed and quarreled in the past, but now one bond unites us all, to wage war until victory is won and never to surrender ourselves to servitude and shame, whatever the cost and the agony may be. And if this is one of the most awe-striking periods in the long history of France and Britain, it is also beyond doubt the most sublime. Side by side, unaided except by their bonds in the great dominions and by the wide empires which rest beneath their shield, side by side the British and French peoples have advanced to rescue not only Europe, but mankind from the foulest and most soul-destroying tyranny which has ever darkened and stained the pages of history.

"Behind them, behind us, behind the armies and fleets of Britain and France gather a group of shattered states and bludgeoned great races—the Czechs, the Poles, the Norwegians, the Danes, the Dutch, the Belgians—upon all of whom the long night of barbarism will descend unbroken even by a star of hope unless we conquer, as conquer we must, as conquer we shall.

"Today is Trinity Sunday. Centuries ago words were written to be a call and a spur to the faithful servants of truth and justice:

"'Arm yourselves and be ye men of valor and be in readiness for the conflict, for it is better for us to perish in battle than to look upon the outrage of our nation and our altars, as the will of God in His heaven. Even so let him do.'"

TROOPSHIP WITH 2,800 MEN ABOARD CLAIMED SUNK BY IRISH BOMB

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, May 19 (AP).—A secret radio station of the outlawed Irish Republican Army broadcast the assertion today that a British troopship carrying 2,800 men was sunk on the way to the Skagerrak by explosives placed by the I. R. A. The broadcast was announced by street posters. It said the ship was on its way from Hull, England, when blown up. The broadcast further declared I. R. A. bombs had damaged a British ammunition factory. The British admiralty had no comment.

TALK OF ROYAL HEIRS LANDING IN CANADIAN PORT

[Copyright: 1940: By the New York News.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—The White House and state department will not be surprised, any day, to hear that a British warship has steamed into a Canadian port with Britain's Dowager Queen Mary and the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose aboard.

Probably Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and her two babies and the three children of King Leopold of the Belgians will follow them.

No one admits any information about this—but capital authorities admit believing that a terrible air bombardment of England is in prospect.

King Leopold is at the front with his armies. King George and Queen Elizabeth and Queen Wilhelmina are expected to remain in England.

BRITISH BOMBERS RAID RHINELAND TOWN AND KILL 18

Guided by Moonlight and Parachute Flares.

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY IN THE RHINELAND, May 19 (AP).—British airmen raided a town in the province of Hanover by the light of the moon and parachute flares early today, spread 30 bombs over an area of about eight city blocks, and killed 18 persons.

German military officers asserted that only women and children and three workmen were killed, altho one military barracks was struck.

Writers View Wreckage.

A party of foreign journalists en route to the Netherlands viewed the wreckage about 10 hours after the raid. They found débris in the streets, wires downed, houses pocked by bomb fragments, and windows shattered for blocks.

The town is a small industrial center with tall chimneys standing up like beacons. There were hits on the factories, tho officials, who did not disclose what products were manufactured, said there was no serious damage.

"Between Muenster and Hanover."

One Associated Press correspondent, Preston Grover, was caught aboard a train during the raid, which he placed "somewhere between Muenster and Hanover."

At the barracks which was struck the Germans said a soldier received a cut hand.

NAZIS RUSH TO COVER

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUENSTER, Westphalia, Near the Dutch Frontier, May 19.—This border town experienced its first air raid alarm in three months at 12:30 a. m. today.

Arrow locates Muenster.

I was just getting to bed at the Furstenhof hotel when the telephone rang and a voice said: "Fliegeralarm bitte — air raid alarm." I put on a coat over my pajamas, went with the other guests into the hotel's cellar.

It had been well prepared for air raids. On the wall was a shovel to scoop away débris, and an ax with which to chop a way out. There were three felt brooms to sweep away gas. The steel doors were gasproof.

Dozen Women Seek Refuge.

A dozen women were in the cellar when I arrived. Some had thrown coats or robes over their night clothes, but all clutched their purses firmly in their hands.

After about five minutes I began to wonder what was going on outside. I heard no bombs, and went out into the street. The desk clerk and head waiter were there looking for the raiders, but no plane was to be seen in the moonlit sky. Off to the north we heard the distant barking of anti aircraft guns, but no bombs fell in Muenster.

The town felt fairly safe, because not far from there was a prison camp with many Dutch, Belgian, and French prisoners. The air raid alarm lasted an hour and twenty minutes, but before the all clear signal sounded I had returned to bed.

Hostile Toward Americans.

The Germans have not been permitted to learn of President Roosevelt's speech to the joint session of congress in which he demanded an air force of 50,000 planes, but today I encountered my first hostility toward Americans. I addressed the hotel clerk in English, knowing that he spoke that language, but he replied: "You are in Germany now. You must speak German." He would not speak in the "enemy tongue."

Later in the morning, with two American colleagues, I was driven to Osnabrueck with the Muenster propaganda chief. He did not speak a word to us, and when we arrived in Osnabrueck he walked rapidly away without the customary handshake. Evidently Americans are persona non grata in Germany at present.

Witness Tells How Germans Felled "Unconquerable" Line

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 19.—A graphic eyewitness story of the German lightning advance on Brussels thru the allied-Belgian line on the Dyle river, a story which throws light on the fighting by German Stuka planes [dive bombers], was given to THE TRIBUNE tonight.

"Strong positions and formidable obstacles, broad tank traps and small concrete bumps designed to hold up advancing tanks and mechanized units, tremendous quantities of weapons of every description and caliber were met on the way to the Dyle river line," the eyewitness said.

Tanks Attack 3 Times.

"The illusion that this position was unconquerable lasted only 24 hours. Three times the tanks attacked. Under their protection the infantry worked its way up to the heavily fortified positions. Then Stukas and artillery did their part.

"Nothing was left but a heap of smoldering débris obstructing both sides and emitting an infernal stench. Thru this demolished line German troops poured day and night on hastily built bridges on their way to the west.

"Our men themselves were staggered by the effects of the German weapons. Their victims lay piled high in the trenches. Moroccans and men of a Senegalese rifle regiment were there. Sometimes there was a Belgian, but there were no white Frenchmen. Those who escaped this hell dragged themselves, tired to death, to the assembly places for the prisoners of war.

"Well over half of the pill boxes had been destroyed in the Dyle positions. Sixteen enemy batteries lined up behind the Dyle line, whose fire had harassed our troops no little, had been silenced and destroyed by German heavy artillery.

"Next we passed half a dozen shattered French tanks. The fields were strewn with discarded weapons and kits. Dead horses lay all around. And while we were laboriously pushing our way thru and around this mass of débris the Stukas began their war song in the air just a few kilometers ahead. With deadly accuracy their bombs were bursting in the midst of the retreating enemy.

"In the little town of Yiville, columns of French artillery had been parked on the market square when the Stukas appeared overhead. French troops were passing thru the streets of the town. It was to become their grave.

French Shells Explode.

"When we passed thru they were lying under the ruins and what the German bombs had spared became a prey to the explosions of the French shells set off by the raging flames. The allied retreat now had turned into a flight and our advancing columns marched thru deserted country.

"At 11 o'clock Friday morning our first men passed a hillock crowned by a bronze lion resting one of its paws on a spear. The inscription, 'June 17, 1815' pointed to the battle of Waterloo. Here, north of Yiville, there were only a few traces of fighting and we met no resistance. In lightning marches we were now advancing thru no man's land but soon we knew we should come up against the enemy."

ALLIES LEARNING HOW TO BATTLE NAZI BLITZKRIEG

Gasoline Problem to Slow Foe, Is Belief.

BY H. TAYLOR HENRY.

PARIS, May 19 (AP).—French military men today expressed the belief that the extension of lines necessary to supply gasoline to the Nazi blitzkrieg machinery as it plunges deeper into France automatically will slow down the German drive.

The Frenchmen also place reliance on the increasing experience of the French troops in dealing with German methods.

To get a true picture of the fighting, French troops must be visualized in hastily built individual trenches, perhaps only a yard deep, or crouched behind stones and hidden in clumps of bushes. They are not, in the present fighting sector, behind long prepared ramparts.

Bombers Attack in Waves.

Forced into open warfare by the rapidity and unforeseen nature of the German advance, French units had to make preliminary resistance in a country they had just commenced to fortify. Their line of more or less isolated posts, linked only by the crossing of their machine gun and rifle fire, was attacked first by dive bombers and then machine gunned by planes.

Against narrow sections of this line, the Germans sent wave after wave of bombers. These planes opened the action in the early morning so that the sun would blind defenders until the planes were on them.

The new type German bomber is a twin engined Junkers 88, which can dive from 4,000 feet almost straight down to 50 feet at 400 miles an hour.

The first warning that a sector chosen by the Germans was under attack came when 300 to 400 bombers dived in successive formations of threes, striking, almost from overhead, at the French positions.

I have seen sectors on which the Germans made dive bomb and then machine gun attacks in the blitzkrieg on the northern front, and I know the effect. The first several times it is demoralizing, but after that the soldier becomes more or less hardened.

Tanks Plunge Thru.

After the planes came the famed Panzer divisions of tanks attacking in line almost side by side. These armored divisions are formed of 300 to 400 heavy tanks. As many as eight to ten divisions were used on a single narrow sector.

Behind the tanks, Nazi light infantry divisions poured into the holes, rushed up in scout cars and armored trucks to take over and organize the ground while the planes and tanks went on to strike at ever-widening sides of the pocket.

Thru the holes made in the French lines, squads of specially trained shock troops raced on motorcycles on which machine guns were mounted. These shock troops dashed up and down the highways, firing on the re-forming French troops until they were captured. So hard was the initial shock that the French troops were pulled back [here six lines were censored].

Bandit Kidnaps Senn High School Couple; Frees Both

A girl and boy, pupils at Senn High school, were kidnaped by a young bandit in their car last night and ejected at separate spots northwest of the city. They were Celeste Cowan, 14 years old, 4456 North Racine avenue, and Lloyd Sims, 17, of 1434 Argyle street. They were sitting in his car in front of 6163 Broadway when the gunman appeared. He forced them to drive to Niles Center where he put Sims out. Then he drove Miss Cowan to Niles, put her out, and escaped in the car. He did not otherwise molest or rob them.

20 NAZI PLANES SHOT FROM SKY, BRITAIN CLAIMS

Oil Depots in 3 German Cities Bombed.

LONDON, May 19 (AP).—British fighter planes were credited today by the air ministry with shooting down at least 20 German planes over the western battlefront and Germany's western interior.

Map locates British bomb attacks.

The air ministry, giving further details of previously reported forays over Germany Friday night, said the raids extended from Hamburg in the north to Sedan, France, in the south.

More than 300 bombs were dropped on oil depots at Bremen, and similar establishments at Hamburg were said to have been bombed from 8 p. m. Friday to Saturday's dawn. The bomb attacks on Hamburg and Bremen were resumed last night and this morning, it was said.

Direct hits on oil and fuel tanks also were made at Hanover, the British declared. Road and rail bridges across the Meuse river also were reported heavily damaged.

Troop Columns Bombed.

Still other targets were airdromes, troop columns and road and rail junctions.

Flames from the Bremen oil reservoirs shot up 2,000 feet, pilots said, lighting the countryside for 50 miles and covering the city in a deep blanket of smoke.

"Direct hits were made on oil and fuel tanks at Hanover," said the air ministry communique, expanding on an earlier routline of the air activity.

Keep All Night Watch.

"All night continuous watch was kept on military traffic over a wide area in western Germany and offensive action was taken against enemy movements.

"Rail and road communications were attacked. At one point a heavy explosion was caused. At another, airdrome buildings were set on fire."

The communique said three British planes were missing.

Two Injured, Nazis Say.

BERLIN, May 19 (AP).—DNB, official German news agency, said an enemy air raid over Bremen at 1 a. m. today resulted in serious injury to two persons, destruction of one house and damage to another. Antiaircraft fire then drove off the raiders, DNB said.

Name Charles-Roux to High French Foreign Office Post

PARIS, May 19 (AP).—François Charles-Roux, heretofore ambassador to the Vatican, was appointed secretary general at the foreign office today. He succeeded Alexis Leger, who is to be given another important post.

NORWEGIAN ARMY CITES 'NUMEROUS' NAZI 'ATROCITIES'

STOCKHOLM, May 19 by radio (AP).—The Norwegian high command issued a communique from "somewhere in Norway" tonight citing "numerous cases of German military atrocities" and asking Norwegians witnessing such acts to make records of them for the Norwegian command.

"We have seen plundering of cities, townships and houses and attacks upon points of no military value," the communique said. "We have seen women and children machine gunned by German flyers. We have seen detachments of Norwegian troops being fooled into submission and thereafter being shot down without a chance of defense.

"We have seen German soldiers, who claim to be the world's best warriors, use Norwegian peasants and prisoners as a shield against Norwegian bullets.

PARISIANS CROWD FAMED SHRINE TO PRAY FOR VICTORY

Honor Patron of Capital, St. Genevieve.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 19.—Born and bred Parisians—the urban type who cannot imagine any form of human life away from their pavements—today turned in crowds to the church which is their particular shrine.

I saw them making their way in little groups thru the streets, which now have an unusual hush contrasting with the disorderly hum of Paris traffic. They climbed up St. Genevieve's hill in the heart of old Paris on the left bank of the Seine river near the university, and libraries, and the technical schools.

They were on the way to the church of St. Stephen of the Mountain which is above all a focus for the devotion of Parisians in contrast to the cathedral of Notre Dame, which is national, and the church near the Louvre, St. Germain L'Auxerrois, the ancient parish of the kings of France.

Front Is Sandbagged.

At St. Stephen's I found the front doors locked. The whole front of the church has been blocked off and sandbagged. I found the entrance on the Rue Clovis, opposite one of France's great schools, the Lycee Henri IV., the courtyard of which now is filled with refugees and which rings with their wails of misery.

Inside the church every one turned to the great blaze of light cut out of the circumambient shadows which mark the chapel and casket of St. Genevieve, the patron saint of Paris.

When last I saw it two years ago only five little candles showed that some Parisians remembered their saint. Today hundreds of candles were constantly alight and people were waiting their turns to put up fresh candles.

All around the casket—containing what was left of the saint's body after mobs in the French revolution hauled it around the streets—were praying, drawn faced, tearless women, some holding by the hand their awed, fierce, uncomprehending children.

Widows in Weeds.

Services of perpetual adoration were being held, but in the big chapel of the abbey, the main body of the church being abandoned, its stained glass panes almost all taken out and the windows blocked up. In the chapel I saw something rare in skeptical Paris—every bit of available space filled with worshipers at a divine service. Here for the first time since this war began I saw young women in those extremely heavy mourning weeds which French widows wear. Amid the swelling music there were too many stifled sobs for the comfort of a mere onlooker.

In the great cathedral of Notre Dame, a solemn and colorful service of intercession "for the triumph of allied arms so that the spiritual heritage of humanity might be saved from destruction" was held this afternoon.

The historic Gothic structure overflowed with reverent, prayerful worshipers including diplomats of all allied nations, soldiers, civilians, refugees, and youthful war widows. Despite the heavy burdens upon his shoulders, Premier Paul Reynaud foresook his desk in the ministry of war to be present at this ceremony.

Thousands Stand Outside.

Thousands were unable to get into the cathedral and contented themselves with reciting their prayers on the vast square outside. The service was broadcast thruout France and to French possessions overseas.

Msgr. Beaussart, vicar general of the archdiocese of Paris, glorified the heroism of French soldiers and exalted the cause for which they are fighting. He so moved his hearers that when he sat down the vast congregation, after a moment of hesitation, broke out into applause which lasted several minutes. This was an unusual and unprecedented spectacle in a French Catholic church.

As the cathedral choir intoned Latin hymns, the relics of Notre Dame, including what many believe to be the true crown of thorns, were carried in procession. Then the mammoth congregation joined in a moving responsive service with "give us victory, we pray thee," as the leitmotif.

French Protestants also held a service of intercession with the Rev. Marc Boegner, president of the French Protestant federation, as the speaker. This service, held at the Etoile Protestant church, also was impressive and well attended.

Finland Confiscates Grain to Save Depleted Supplies

TRIBUNE WRITER TELLS STORY OF DUTCH COLLAPSE

People Bitter at British and Holland's Queen.

terdam was in the hands of the Germans. The police confessed to the Tribune correspondent that it was impossible for them to talk to The Hague. This indicated that the German parachute troops had cut wires.

Myriads of Parachutists.

Parachute troops began falling all over Holland and, altho official communiques stated they had been effectively dealt with, either killed or captured, they appeared on the third day on the outskirts of Amsterdam and so effectively terrorized defense operations that certain Dutch experts threw up their hands in horror and declared this was the secret weapon of Hitler.

However, there was still no belief that Holland was ready to capitulate until it was announced officially that the queen and the government had fled to England. The original announcement did not mention that they had left Holland but this was already known because of a previous British broadcast announcing their arrival in England. The Tribune correspondent heard the original announcement that the queen had left over the public radio to which at least 50 Dutch people also listened.

For four days we had heard sirens screech and seen bombs drop but had not seen a single tear. Faces were grim and determined, but neither frightened nor whining.

Tears Begin to Fall.

But when the announcement came over that the queen had left the country two women broke into sobs while three others followed by their husbands rushed to their rooms to hide their expressions of grief.

If I have ever seen unanimous action from one incident, I saw it then. It was bitterness.

"She has deserted us," one woman cried. "Why, I thought she would stay by us. This is the end."

And three minutes later, as I went to my room, the maid expressed it clearer than any one else:

"And I have four brothers fighting on the front and yet she leaves. They will try to conceal it from my brothers but I know if they know what I know they wouldn't fight one minute longer."

The next morning smoke issued from the Shell oil plant across the canal back of the railroad station. A few minutes later the great gasoline storage base was on fire. More than $50,000,000 worth of petroleum was being purposely destroyed so it would not fall into the hands of the enemy.

For two days it burned and the flames sometimes shot 1,000 feet high. Who set fire to those oil reserves was the question. Those fires were the beacons of Holland's surrender. If the Dutch thought they could defend Amsterdam they never would have done that.

But then another report started around. British Broadcasting company reports emphasized the presence in Holland of British engineers who had been very skillful in demolition work. They were reported in all sections aiding in the destruction of oil and supplies which would be of value to the enemy.

Psychological Blow.

This was the big psychological blow to all idea of defense, from the general staff down to the soldiers under the shelling and bombing. The moment it was discovered that the British were not there to fight for Holland but to see that as much of Holland as was valuable to the enemy was destroyed, the defense crumpled like a paper cup.

They were bitter—bitter against the queen and bitter against the British.

The German hand is very thoro. That is, there is almost no sign of the Germans. The troops have gone thru. The stores are open. The schools are open. The ordinary Dutch civil law prevails in everything save an attack on the occupying forces.

A Hollander cannot insult a German soldier. Holland is practically back to normal. Five and one-half days after the blitzkrieg started it was finished in Holland. When the queen and government fled the country—and when the British did not come to fight at their side — the Dutch soldiers lost their hearts and their determination and their country.

EX-SENATOR PEPPER WARNS OF DANGERS IN U. S. WAR HYSTERIA

Philadelphia, Pa., May 19 [Special].—Former Senator George Wharton Pepper, who yesterday was elected as Pennsylvania's member of the resolutions committee for the Republican national convention, described today as "bunk" the idea that "the only thing America can do now is turn herself into an armed camp and get ready for war."

"If we're not careful," Pepper warned, "we're going to turn America into a kind of German state. If we don't watch out, we'll lose our democracy in the very process of defending it. I'm for strengthening our navy, our air force, and our army, but I'm not for letting everything else go and doing nothing but prepare for war."

100,000 KILLED IN ROTTERDAM, DUTCH REPORT

LONDON, May 19 (AP).—At least 100,000 people were killed and a third of Rotterdam destroyed when the Germans bombed that Netherlands seaport before its surrender, a Dutch legation communique from Paris, as quoted by British news agency dispatches, said today.

[This dispatch contradicts a story, passed by the German censor, which THE TRIBUNE received Saturday night from Larry Rue, who left Rotterdam after its fall. Rue said the official figure for the dead in Rotterdam was 350.]

The Germans conducted their bombing operations from an estimated 4,500 feet, the Dutch communique said. Buildings over an area of more than five square miles were destroyed, it charged.

GUY MURCHIE JR. TO JOIN TRIBUNE STAFF IN EUROPE

Flies on Clipper Plane to Help Cover War.

Guy Murchie Jr.

Guy Murchie Jr., a member of the staff of the Chicago Tribune editorial department since 1934, left by American Clipper yesterday to augment the Tribune's staff of correspondents reporting the war in Europe. Murchie flew from North Beach, N. Y., for Lisbon, Portugal.

From there he expects to fly to London via Marseilles, France, and Paris. In addition to writing war dispatches, Murchie will take photographs of war scenes and other subjects with a natural color camera for reproduction in THE TRIBUNE. Murchie, a skilled artist, also will make pen and ink sketches to supplement the photographs.

New Link Added to Chain.

Murchie's assignment is another link in the news chain by which THE TRIBUNE is covering the war. The chief correspondents are stationed at strategic points thruout Europe.

These correspondents and their present headquarters are: Sigrid Schultz and E. R. Noderer, Berlin; Larry Rue, David Darrah, and Alex Small, Paris; Joseph Cerutti, London; Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening, Basel; Sam Brewer, Bucharest; Donald Day, Stockholm, and Maurice English, Madrid.

All of these correspondents are Americans and many of them have been in THE TRIBUNE's service since the last war. Their information is supplemented by that of many other correspondents who form a network covering all other important cities and fighting fronts in Europe and the near east.

Murchie a Harvard Graduate.

Murchie is 33 years old. He was born in Boston. His father was a Rough Rider with Theodore Roosevelt in the Spanish-American war and was United States marshal of Massachusetts when Theodore Roosevelt was President. The younger Murchie was graduated in 1929 from Harvard university, where he rowed on the crew.

He traveled around the world after his graduation and accumulated material for a book, "Men on the Horizon." This volume of observations on his journey was illustrated with his sketches. Since joining THE TRIBUNE he has worked both as a reporter in the news department and as a writer of articles for the Graphic section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

LINDBERGH HITS INVASION FEARS, WAR MEDDLING

Proposes Hemisphere Air Defense Program.

Calls for Clear Thinking.

"Even here in America, it is difficult to think clearly amidst the conflict of facts and headlines, the contradictory advice of columnists, the claims and counter claims of propaganda, and the blind selfishness of party politics. The conservative who scoffed at aviation yesterday has become the radical who says that tomorrow we will be invaded by European aircraft.

"Let us reëxamine the position of America in the air. New discoveries and developments affect nations in different ways. In Europe aviation has affected England adversely and Germany advantageously.

"One nation may have a psychology and topography which promotes the development of aviation, while another finds itself entirely unadjusted to the tempo of the air.

Terms Position Fortunate.

"Judged by aeronautical standards, we in the United States are in a singularly fortunate position. Our people have natural ability in the design, construction, and operation of aircraft. Our highly organized industry, our widely separated centers of population, our elimination of formalities in interstate travel, all contribute to the development of American aviation.

"From the standpoint of defense, we still have two great oceans between us and the warring armies of Europe and Asia. In fact there is hardly a natural element contributing to air strength and impregnability that we do not now possess. Aviation is for us an asset. It adds to our national safety. With a firm and clear cut policy, we can build an air defense for America that will stand above these shifting sands of war.

Urges Definite Policy.

"But until we have decided upon a definite policy of defense, the mere construction of large numbers of aircraft will not be adequate for our national safety. In fact, without a strong policy of defense, we will not even know what types of planes to build. The speed and range of our fighting planes must depend upon the bases available for their use.

"If we are to defend the United States alone, then we must construct numerous air bases along the Mexican and Canadian borders. Such a plan would require large numbers of small bombers and pursuit planes, and eventually it would leave us as vulnerable to air attack as the nations of Europe are today.

"On the other hand, if we are to defend the entire western hemisphere, we need long range bombers capable of attacking a hostile fleet a thousand miles or more at sea. But there is little use discussing types and numbers until a defense policy is established.

For United Americas.

"This brings us to an issue which must sooner or later be faced. An adequate air defense of the western hemisphere necessitates the coöperation of the other nations of this hemisphere. Our military aircraft must have access to their bases. Their foreign policy must have same relationship to ours. We cannot hold this hemisphere free from foreign war if nations which lie within it declare war on foreign powers.

"Let us not be confused by this talk of invasion by European aircraft. The air defense of America is as simple as the attack is difficult when the true facts are faced. We are in danger of war today not because European people have attempted to interfere with the internal affairs of America, but because American people have attempted to interfere with the internal affairs of Europe.

"It is true that bombing planes can be built with sufficient range to cross the Atlantic and return. They can be built either in America or Europe. Aeronautical engineers have known this for many years. But the cost is high, the target large, and the military effectiveness small.

"Such planes do not exist today in any air force. A foreign power could not conquer us by dropping bombs in this country unless the bombing were accompanied by an invading army. And an invading army requires thousands of small bombers and pursuit planes; it would have little use for huge trans-Atlantic aircraft.

"No, the advantage lies with us, for great armies must still cross oceans by ship. Only relatively small forces can be transported by air today, and over distances of a few hundred miles at most. This has great significance in Europe, but it is not an element that we have to contend with in America. Such a danger can come, in any predictable future, only thru division and war among our own peoples.

Calls for Coöperation.

"As long as American nations work together, as long as we maintain reasonable defense forces, there will be no invasion by foreign aircraft. And no foreign navy will dare to approach within bombing range of our coasts.

"Our danger in America is an internal danger. We need not fear a foreign invasion unless American peoples bring it on thru their own quarreling and meddling with affairs abroad. Our eyes should not search beyond the horizon for problems which lie at our feet. The greatest lesson we can draw from Europe today is that national strength must be built within a nation itself and cannot be achieved by limiting the strength of others.

"What of the unforeseen developments of science? Rocket propulsion? New forms of energy? New methods of destruction? No generation can entirely safeguard the future for those that follow. They must meet their own problems as those problems arise. The greatest inheritance we can pass on to our children is a reasonable solution of the problems that confront us in our time—a strong nation, a lack of debt, a solid American character free from the entanglements of the old world.

Urges Guarding America.

"Let us guard America today as our forefathers guarded it in the past. They won this country from Europe with a handful of revolutionary soldiers. We certainly can hold it now with a population of 130 million people. If we cannot, we are unworthy to have it.

"But the course we have been following in recent months leads to neither strength nor friendship nor peace. It will leave us hated by victor and vanquished alike, regardless of which way the tide of battle turns. One side will claim that we aided its enemies; the other, that we did not help enough.

"To be successful in modern warfare a nation must prepare many years before the fighting starts. If any one doubts that, let him turn his eyes to Europe. Years ago we decided to stay out of foreign wars. We based our military policy on that decision. We must not waver now that the crisis is at hand. There is no longer time for us to enter this war successfully. The result of vacillating policies lies clearly before us in the chaos of Europe today.

Would Increase Defenses.

"Let us turn again to America's traditional rôle—that of building and guarding our own destiny. We need a greater air force, a greater army, and a greater navy; they have been inadequate for many years. Let us form with our neighboring nations a clear cut and definite policy of American defense. But above all, let us stop this hysterical chatter of calamity and invasion that has been running rife these last few days. It is not befitting to the people who built this nation.

"That the world is facing a new era is beyond question. Our mission is to make it a better era. But regardless of which side wins the war, there is no reason, aside from our own actions, to prevent a continuation of peaceful relationships between America and the countries of Europe. If we desire peace, we need only stop asking for war. No one wishes to attack us, and no one is in a position to do so.

Assails Pro-War Element.

"The only reason that we are in danger of becoming involved in this war is because there are powerful elements in America who desire us to take part. They represent a small minority of the American people, but they control much of the machinery of influence and propaganda. They seize every opportunity to push us closer to the edge.

"It is time for the underlying character of this country to rise and assert itself, to strike down these elements of personal profit and foreign interest. This underlying character of America is our true defense.

"Let us turn our eyes to our own nation. We cannot aid others until we have first placed our own country in a position of spiritual and material leadership and strength."

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

DEFENSE PATROL PLAN IS SPURRED BY SPORTS CLUB

State Federation to Join Civilian Reserve.

BY BOB BECKER.

Organization of a sportsmen's defense reserve, first announced Saturday in THE TRIBUNE, was given impetus last night by the mass coöperation of the Illinois Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, boasting a membership of more than 125,000 thruout the state.

It was predicted at least 50,000 of the members will sign with the defense reserve before the week is ended, with perhaps 15,000 more signing later. More than 100,000 of the federation members are familiar with the use of firearms.

The sportsmen's defense reserve would incorporate into a nonmilitary body thousands of sportsmen who would utilize their knowledge of firearms to protect their communities in the event of national emergency. Plans to organize the sportsmen will be made tonight at a meeting in the Sherman hotel.

Directors Approve Entry.

The addition of the Illinois Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs to the movement was approved at a meeting of 31 directors in Decatur. Former Judge Frank Ortman, of Pontiac, past president of the federation, suggested the entry after quoting editorials and stories from THE TRIBUNE.

The directors ordered that the federation's 416 chapters in 88 counties be notified at once and volunteers be told to send their names and addresses to William Lodge, executive secretary, in Monticello, Livingston county.

"We stand ready to do what we can, and to give our services where and as best they may be needed," said H. Ray Myers of Decatur, organization president. "We think it's a fine plan."

Organization Is State-Wide.

Mr. Myers and Judge Ortman said the federation is truly state-wide, covering 88 counties with at least one chapter in each county and 10 or 15 in others. Chapter memberships range from 100 to 2,000.

Lodge said a federation representative will attend tonight's meeting in the Sherman hotel. It is to start at 6:30 p. m. Walter C. Peacock, Chicago merchant, who is heading the defense reserve movement, will preside.

The organization, as it is to be formed tonight, will have no official connection with the army, navy, National Guard, or organized reserves. It will be made up of marksmen willing to work in a civilian capacity along lines followed by civilian defense groups in England.

Altho the lead in the organization was taken by Chicago skeet and trap clubs, downstate clubs have been quick to join. Over night clubs in Decatur, Peoria, Harrisburg, Lincoln and Kankakee enrolled their members. Groups outside the state—five in Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn.—joined the procession, strongly indicating that the program would become national in scope.

Plan Wins Approval.

The following statements made by representatives of sportsmen's organizations are typical of the many evidences of approval received by Mr. Peacock and THE TRIBUNE:

E. R. Maetzold, Minneapolis, vice president of the American Trap Shooting association—The trap shooters of the Twin Cities and Minnesota are definitely in favor of a sportsmen's defense reserve. This would be of immeasurable value should it become necessary to defend ourselves against attack by a parachute army.

Fred Henley, field captain, Harrisburg Skeet and Gun club—The Harrisburg club pledges its support in this patriotic movement.

E. E. Mellinger, skeet chairman, Exmoor Country club, Highland Park—I believe the formation of a sportsmen's defense reserve is a very desirable project. I and others in my group will attend Monday's meeting and do anything possible to help the movement.

Lawrence Doll, Chicago, secretary Illinois Skeet association—Our association is heart and soul behind any movement which will be of any possible aid to our country in time of need. It's a great idea and the Illinois Skeet association will do all in its power to help.

W. M. Peterson, Winnetka chief of police—I have been shooting shotguns and rifles for 47 years—from the time since I had to climb up on a tree stump to load my first muzzle-loading rifle. It is appropriate that shotgun and rifle users should formulate an organization to do anything possible to aid their country in any emergency.

Kenneth Beall, Bannockburn, skeet committee Knollwood Country club, Lake Forest—Army officers have said that skeet shooters who know how to lead a target make the best anti-aircraft gunners. I have been shooting rifles and shotguns for more than 20 years and I am sure that an organization such as the one being formed under Mr. Peacock certainly will be effective.

A. Hultbert, secretary Kankakee Marsh Skeet and Gun club—At a meeting held recently the club indorsed the sportsmen's defense reserve and plans to coöperate to the fullest extent.

Lincoln Skeet and Gun club—We accept with pleasure the invitation to join the sportsmen's defense reserve and extend congratulations to Mr. Peacock and THE TRIBUNE for instituting such a movement.

Board of Managers, Decatur Gun club—The Decatur Gun club is enthusiastic in pledging its support to the sportsmen's defense reserve, believing it to be a worthwhile movement to organize an outstanding American resource for national defense.

Peoria Skeet and Gun club—Be assured of our full coöperation in this patriotic movement.

Auto and truck (arrows) wrecked when bridge collapsed over Fox river at Dayton, near Ottawa.

Ottawa, Ill., May 19 [Special].—An automobile and a truck were thrown into the Fox river at Dayton, northeast of Ottawa, late this afternoon when the bridge which spans the river collapsed. Two occupants of each vehicle were rescued unhurt.

According to information given to Sheriff Edmund J. Welter, an Ottawa newspaperman, D. M. Davis and his wife were in their sedan, near the center of the bridge, when a truck driven by Robert Shelton of Marseilles, who was accompanied by his wife, drove upon the bridge. Then the span broke and both cars plunged downward. Timbers kept the cars from falling into the water, which is 10 feet deep.

The bridge at Dayton is on what is known as the Old Chicago road. Sheriff Welter blocked the gravel road at intersections on both sides and posted detour signs.

GERMANS IN EAST HAIL VICTORY OF HITLER'S TROOPS

North Bergen, N. J., May 19 [Special].—Joy over the successes of Adolf Hitler's armies in France and Belgium predominated here today at a demonstration conducted by the German-American conference of Greater New York.

The purpose of the demonstration was to raise funds for the relief of relatives of German war dead. Thousands filed into the park where husky young men and blonde young women in Bavarian costume danced and sang, while the older folk sat at picnic benches, ate sandwiches, drank beer, and talked—chiefly about the current war. Unofficially, the festival was a "victory celebration."

Questioned regarding the war, a member of the committee said:

"We do not have to hang our heads in shame. If the French or English were winning there would be fireworks at Times square."

Planes Lock Wings in Air; Two Women Die in Crash

Phoenix, Ariz., May 19 (AP).—Two women were killed today when two airplanes flying over a residential district locked wings, bringing down one of the small craft. Mrs. Gracie Anderson, amateur pilot and wife of a radio technician, and Mrs. Homer Norton, wife of the Phoenix station manager of American Airlines, were killed. The other plane, piloted by Ernest Montgomery, landed safely at the airport.

GIVE US FIGHTING WINGS! PRIVATE PILOTS DEMAND

Urge Army to Provide Advanced Training.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

A group of Chicago airmen has presented a program to the federal government that would bring military flight training to most of the experienced civilian flyers who have, hitherto, been ignored by army and navy aviation heads, it became known here yesterday. The organization is the Civilian Air corps, a voluntary association formed as a secondary defense unit.

The plan has been presented in the name of the Civilian Air corps by Arthur J. La Pointe Jr., aviation instructor in Chicago high schools and a flight instructor under the Civil Aeronautics authority's college pilot training program. La Pointe has presented his plan to all Illinois congressmen and senators and has interested a number of other legislators in Washington in his proposals.

Every Pilot Needed.

"Up to this time, the government has been interested only in the few men who go thru the service aviation schools at Pensacola, Fla., and San Antonio, Tex., and in the chosen few who now are getting their first taste of aviation in the college training program," said La Pointe yesterday.

"But events in Europe have shown us all that we need every pilot that is to be had. There are 14,000 licensed pilots in the country today—experienced men—who are not members of any military unit, reserve, or National guard squadron.

"It's all very well to train college men, but when they complete their course they come out with only 35 hours of flying time. You're not a military pilot with 35 hours. I don't say you are a military pilot even tho you have had 1,000 hours—but it's certain that a 1,000 hour pilot is a lot closer to the finished airman than one with less experience.

Seeks to Cut Time Lag.

"Our idea is to give the men who do have the experience at this time an opportunity to get enough military training under the army's regular pilots to fit them for rapid transition from civilian to army flying in case of an emergency that may rise within a few months. By using the men who already have had a lot of flying the time lag in training can be cut down to weeks instead of years.

"Furthermore, we feel that in case of war the civilian flyer will be mobilized, and rapidly tossed into combat. It's only right that such men should be given a chance to familiarize themselves somewhat with army planes and army procedures beforehand. It not only will speed rearmament but will give them a chance when they may face more completely trained enemy flyers."

La Pointe said his group believes civilian pilots between the ages of 18 and 35 years should be included in any expansion of a military pilot training program. Most of the 14,000 men to whom he referred have had between 300 and 1,000 hours of flying time, and could go into advanced courses at once.

Urges Training Program.

Specifically La Pointe asked that the army undertake supervision of a training program among the pilots of this immediate reserve source. Allocation of advanced types of training planes and funds to provide for instructors are the only elements needed.

"It's time that the army and congress took a realistic view of the licensed pilots," La Pointe declared.

The Civilian Air corps has enlisted the support of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots' association, which has more than 5,000 members nationally, and the Private Flyers' association, another national civilian pilots' organization, in supporting the plan in congress.

AMMONIA FUMES AND SMOKE WILT 83 AT N. Y. FIRE

New York, May 19 [Special].—Eighty-three firemen and bystanders were overcome by smoke and exhaustion tonight in fighting a two-alarm blaze in the New York Cold Storage company plant.

At midnight the fire had gone on for 15 hours and still defied control.

There was little flame, but firefighters found it all but impossible to work, even with gas masks, in the stifling heat and smoke that was laden with ammonia fumes from the plant's refrigerating system.

COATS AND GEMS STOLEN.

Two fur coats and jewelry valued at $1,300 were stolen Saturday from the home of Mrs. Blanche Blank, 5126 University avenue, she reported to police yesterday.

Norse Marcher

Sonja Ann Kantrell, 1 year old, youngest in Norwegian American parade to Humboldt park.

Thousands of Norwegian Americans yesterday held the 40th annual May celebration of the Norwegian National league, marking Norway's constitution day. A children's parade starting at Artesian and North avenues and proceeding to the Leif Eriksen statue in Humboldt park opened the program.

A folkfest was held at Harms park, 4201 North Western avenue, including baseball and athletic contests for the younger persons, other contetsts for their elders, and singing for all.

Talks in Norwegian and English featured the Humboldt park program, while the Norwegian Ladies' Singing society entertained with choral offerings. Eugene G. Jacobson is president and chairman of the board of directors of the Norwegian National league, which is composed of 36 societies.

U. S. AIR PROGRAM PUTS SPOTLIGHT ON SCOTT FIELD

Belleville, Ill., May 19 (AP).—President Roosevelt's call for 50,000 flighting planes for national defense focuses attention on Scott field, future headquarters of the air corps combat force, where the army is giving basic training to men on the ground who will keep the planes in the air.

Arrow locates Scott field.

For every pilot, there must be 25 to 30 groundlings—men who groom the planes, operate the radios, set up the machine guns, and scan the weather. Without them a flyer would be like a locomotive engineer who had lost his fireman, brakeman, and roundhouse crew.

About 800 enlisted men attend the school at a time. After completion of the four weeks' course, they are assigned to Lowry field, Denver, or to Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill., for advanced work.

WE AWAIT ONLY DUCE'S CALL TO ACT, CIANO SAYS

Blackouts Ordered in Zone Near France.

ROME, May 19 (AP).—Italy "must say and will say" its word in European events, and only awaits "the order of the day." Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, made this statement to the Italian people today as air raid precautions were ordered for areas in the northern part of the country, facing France.

Ciano spoke in Milan on the first anniversary of the signing of what he called the pact of steel—the Italian-German military alliance.

By his speech Ciano broke a five month silence on foreign affairs. He did so at a time when Fascists hinted Italy was being drawn to the brink of war by German successes on the western front.

Must Await Duce's Word.

"Italy cannot remain a stranger to events in European life," Ciano said, but added that the people must wait until Premier Mussolini speaks to know what to do next. Even as the foreign chief spoke, a rumor circulated in Rome that Mussolini was planning to speak tomorrow night from his balcony at the Palazzo Venezia.

"Italy of the Ethiopian undertaking and victories in Spain is not a stranger nor can it be a stranger to events in European life in which Rome must say and will say its word," Ciano asserted.

It is in the spirit of its victories, Ciano said, that Italy was hastening "these new tasks for which it will be called." These tasks, he said, were dictated by "the necessity of finally achieving our aspirations."

Pledges to Keep Faith.

Italy, he said, in what appeared to be a reference to the alliance with Germany, "intends to keep faith in her engagements and likewise her greater destiny." He asserted that he knew the people would not expect him to say more because "the order of the day will come to us all from Il Duce when he will have decided upon it."

"And when he gives it," Ciano continued, "Milan will leap once again to its feet."

Blackouts and air raid defense experiments were ordered to begin tomorrow in Milan and Turin, both of which are close to the French frontier.

These were the first precautions of that kind since Italy adopted her policy of nonbelligerency at the start of the European war last September.

Says "Hour Is Near."

Authoritative Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, Ciano's newspaper, dwelt in his weekly broadcast to the armed forces on Germany's victories.

He told the troops that when Il Duce gives the order, "we shall conquer."

The outspoken Il Resto del Carlino of Bologna also announced that Italy's "hour is near."

Describing the Italians as "impatient to march" after hearing of the German successes, the newspaper promised there still was time for Italy to get into the fight.

"The end of the two giants [Britain and France] will not be sudden," it said. "They will defend themselves tooth and nail with the realization that they deserve no quarter.

"There is, therefore, glorious work for everyone and we must not feel any jealousy for the lightning victories our comrades of Hitlerian Germany are winning over the common enemy."

500 Scientists Call on U. S. to Avoid War as Futile Waste

New York, May 19 [Special].—Five hundred American scientists, including two Nobel prize winners, today signed a resolution urging that the United States remain at peace.

"The continuance of progress," the resolution read, "now largely depends on the scientists of the neutral nations. American scientists can best fulfill their share of the responsibility if the United States remain at peace."

They further asserted that the futility of war is especially clear to them.

A copy of the resolution has been forwarded to President Roosevelt, accompanied by an open letter by Dr. Anton J. Carlson, national president of the American Association of Scientific Workers and professor of physiology at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Compton Among Signers.

Signers of the resolution represent every field of scientific research. They include Dr. Arthur C. Compton, professor of physics at the University of Chicago, who won the Nobel prize in 1927 for cosmic ray research, and Dr. George H. Whipple, dean of the school of medicine of the University of Rochester, who received the prize in 1934 for his studies of pernicious anemia.

Dr. Carlson explained in his covering letter that "thousands of our colleagues in science have had no opportunity" to sign the resolution, which appears in the current issue of Science, official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Futility Is Emphasized.

"The futility of war is especially clear to scientists, for war, as a method of solving human problems, is out of harmony with the rational spirit and objective methods of science," the resolution says.

"Scientists know that democracy and freedom of thought, which are precious to us both as citizens and as men of science, are endangered in the emotional turmoil which accompanies war. The continuance of progress now largely depends upon the scientists of the neutral nations. American scientists can best fulfill their share of this responsibility if the United States remains at peace."

Many of the signers sent letters expatiating upon their beliefs or reasons for signing. Dr. Compton wrote: "Perhaps as much as any group, the scientists sees that his own contribution to man's welfare is spoiled by war."

Would Outwit Brute Force.

Dr. Robert M. Yerkes of Yale university, who for years has conducted experimental work with chimpanzees, drew a parallel. He said:

"For many years I have worked with an experimental animal whose physical strength and destructiveness are several times greater than mine. Only thru anticipating and outwitting it by intellectual leadership could any purpose prevail. We have remained at peace with one another. Mutual use of force would have destroyed one or both of us!

"To rush headlong into the mêlée in Europe seems to some of us an unwise way to use our vast resources and prejudicial to our potential importance as peaceful bearers of the torch of intellectual progress."

JAIL 12 IN NATIONWIDE CLOTHING THEFT RING; SEIZE $50,000 LOOT

Detroit, Mich., May 19 (AP).—Federal prosecution of a ring of clothing thieves, operating on almost a transcontinental basis, was planned today after the seizure here of between $40,000 and $50,000 worth of men's suits.

Twelve persons were in custody. Six men and two women were held here by city police and three men and a woman were in custody at Helena, Mon. The arrests followed shopliftings at Bozeman, Mont., and suspicious shipments from that state to a Detroit address.

As the investigation widened to include other midwest states, detectives reported finding 1,450 men's suits hanging on racks in the basement of a house. Labels and identifying marks had been removed. Two occupants of the house were arrested.

FIGHTS BANDITS; STABBED 5 TIMES.

HOW YOU CAN GET A $100 LOAN

IF YOU CAN PAY BACK $6.43 A MONTH

No endorsers or guarantors needed — No credit questions asked of friends or relatives — Quick, private service.

Do you want to get a loan quickly and simply? At Household Finance you can borrow $20 to $300 without endorsers or guarantors, if you can make regular monthly payments. From the table below you may choose the payment plan which fits your own purse. You may repay a small amount each month. Or you may make larger payments in order to pay up sooner.

Choose your own payment plan

Suppose that you need a $100 loan. You find this amount in the first column of the table. Then read across picking out the monthly payment which you wish to make. You will find, for instance, that monthly payments of $9.77 each will repay a $100 loan in full in twelve months. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.43 a month for twenty months will also repay a $100 loan.

When you borrow at Household Finance, you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. The sooner you repay, the less your loan costs. (Payments shown in the table include all charges. You pay nothing more.)

Household charges only one rate—the same to everyone. This rate is 2½% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, and 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100.

All you do to borrow

All you do to get a Household Finance loan is to acquaint us with your problem. We require no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. (Loans are made on furniture, car or note.) No questions regarding your credit are asked of friends or relatives—and you don't have to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. Hindsight and Foresight

By HOLGAR J. JOHNSON

President, Institute of Life Insurance

I LIKE to buy from a bakery where the public is invited in to watch all the processes because I know the owners must be proud of their high standards.

This method of putting your business in a show window, as it were, is not unlike the open manner in which the life insurance companies function. I doubt if any business in the country today is more open to public view.

Every company is under the supervision of every state in which it operates. There are regular examinations of life insurance companies, not only to check income and outgo, and assets and liabilities, but to look into company operation and management. And in between these examinations the companies exhibit their affairs to the state departments in sworn statements.

But that's not all. The companies must also stand ready to answer any question that policyholders or state commissioners may ask.

Furthermore, the commissioners of various states hold regular meetings to compare notes and to work out jointly new ideas and safeguards which they believe would be in the public interest.

ABOUT the only thing confidential in the life insurance business is the policyholders' individual policies. Everything else is a sort of glass house open to the view of the public and the state officials from every side.

This is as it should be. Far from being resented, this setup is understood and approved by the companies. They, as guardians of funds which they hold on behalf of the policyholders, recognize that the whole structure of life insurance must be so built that the policyholders can have implicit faith and confidence in it.

NOTE: In this regular Monday column, paid for at advertising rates, the Institute of Life Insurance has asked its president to discuss questions of interest to life insurance policyholders. Inquiries may be addressed to 60 East 42nd Street, New York City.

CALL FROM PARIS UPSETS HULL'S RADIO ADDRESS

Foreign Trade Message Read by His Aid.

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP).—The task of keeping in touch with developments abroad prevented Secretary of State Cordell Hull from delivering a radio address tonight which included a message from President Roosevelt saying that peace hopes depended upon "liberal" economic policies.

The secretary was notified to expect an important telephone call from Paris, presumably from Ambassador William Bullitt, at the time he was to have gone on the air. Breckenridge Long, assistant secretary of state, read his chief's manuscript for him.

The speech was in celebration of Foreign Trade week. Mr. Roosevelt's message said the promotion of "liberal" economic policies would continue to be "a vital part and a dominant purpose of the foreign policy of the United States."

"The Only Way."

"In this way, and in this way alone, can the United States contribute to the economic reconstruction of the world when the destruction now going on shall have ceased," the President declared.

Hull warned that if the doctrines of "totalitarian autarchy"—"so ominously spreading today"—became widely dominant in international trade relations, mankind would be plunged "into a period of chaos and impoverishment, and, inevitably, into moral and spiritual decay."

The principles underlying the administration's trade agreements program, he asserted, "offer the only possible basis on which the economic life of the world can be successfully rebuilt when the present wars are over."

Means of Bargaining.

The trade agreements program provides a means of bargaining with the other countries for reciprocal tariff reductions.

Detailing dislocating effects on the European war on American commerce and agriculture, the secretary said difficulties now being experienced in obtaining "essential imports" provided an "unanswerable refutation to those who indulge in reckless assertions that our country can isolate itself from the rest of the world and prosper."

He said it was America's duty to itself to make "every appropriate contribution toward the establishment of stable peace and orderly international relations."

Lists Two Objectives.

Hull contended the paramount task of the country was two-fold:

1. "We must increase our national strength, redouble our national vigor and courage, create for ourselves adequate means of defending this country's safety and security against any armed challenge."

2. For use when circumstances permit, there should be held in readiness "the proven and tested instrument for constructive action" provided by the trade agreements program.

Listing some of the dislocations of American export trade caused by the European war despite an increase in the total since last September, the secretary advised that "we must frankly face the possibility that these difficulties may become greater."

"Initiative and Enterprise."

He said the government was striving earnestly to deal with them and also with the interference with the flow of certain raw materials and other imports, but added:

"Whether in war or in peace, the prosperity of our foreign commerce must depend upon the vigor and ingenuity of those actually engaged in the process of trade, upon their initiative and enterprise."

He termed gratifying the fact that the shipping industry had adjusted itself to emergency conditions with such effect that most American flag ships were busily employed.

BABY FARMERS FACE KIDNAPING CHARGE TODAY

Mrs. Mae Smith and her daughter, Mary, operators of a baby farm at 2415 Winnemac avenue, will be arraigned today in Felony court before Judge John V. McCormick on charges of kidnaping. Samuel Papanek, assistant state's attorney, said he would ask a continuance on a second charge of operating a maternity home without a license.

The kidnaping charges grew out of the story of Ethel De Patie, 24 years old, of 10546 Oakley avenue, which started the baby farm investigation. She is the unwed mother of Carol Ann, 1 month old. She told Judge Harry M. Fisher she had entered the Smith home April 8 to have the baby on the Smiths' offer to arrange for adoption.

Carol Ann was born April 12, and two days later the young mother told the Smiths she wished to keep her baby. They ejected her the next day without the baby, she told Judge Fisher, and demanded $150 for Carol Ann's return.

Four Gunmen Loot Hotel Vault; Hold Three Prisoner

Four men using hammers and chisels broke open seven safety deposit boxes yesterday in the vault room of the Majestic hotel, 29 West Quincy street, obtaining an unknown quantity of loot. The four, armed with revolvers, held Frank Fogerty, the night clerk; Ben Block, elevator operator, and John Powell, a guest, under guard as they worked on the boxes for half an hour. They also robbed Powell of $30.

STRIKE CURTAILS MILK DELIVERIES; NO PEACE MOVES

Stoppage Is Second in Less than 3 Weeks.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

An estimated 80 per cent of the milk supply of Chicago and the Cook county suburbs was shut off early yesterday when the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, notified by dealers that a lowered wage scale was in effect, went on strike.

No definite peace moves were in prospect last evening, 16 hours after the order to cease work was given, and one union official, who referred to the situation as a technical lockout, said, "it looks like a long siege."

The delivery stoppage was the second in less than three weeks. In both instances the failure of the union and dealers to agree on a new wage scale to replace one that expired April 30 was the underlying cause. The first strike, called on May 1, was ended by a truce agreement May 3, but negotiations under the truce terms ceased Saturday.

The Situation Summarized.

The situation as it affected the four million consumers was summarized as follows:

1. The only union milk wagon drivers working are those employed by some 50 small dealers who have signed temporary agreements with the union—600 to 1,000 of the total union membership of 4,500.

2. Dairy plants have on hand a certain amount of milk, and retail customers are being permitted to buy there on a cash-and-carry basis. This supply and that in stores probably will be exhausted at noon and the real consumer pinch will come tomorrow.

3. By agreement of the union and dealers, hospitals and nurseries are being supplied from two central plants and are in no danger of shortages.

Farmers Lose Their Outlet.

Farmers supplying the market, some 16,000, are losing an estimated $60,000 a day by the stoppage and in general have no outlets for milk. Arthur H. Lauterbach, general manager of the Pure Milk association, said he was appealing to public officials to step in, and "would go to the White House" if necessary to obtain help for the public and farmers.

Numerous instances of milk dumping were reported on the north and west sides and along country roads. The police said, however, that there had been no serious clashes.

Wide Apart on Wages.

The differences between the union and the 75 or 80 members of the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., can be expressed in a few words: The union insists that while negotiations for a new contract are being carried on the men must be paid at the old rate of $48 a week plus commissions; the dealers have decreed that the pay rate shall be a basic $30 wage and commissions which they estimate at a total $40. With commissions, the old scale gave the driver $52 a week on the average, so his cut would be at least $12 a week; unionists say it would be $15 or more.

There are also differences about working hours, seniority, etc., but there is little doubt these could be settled if the wage were determined.

LAY HOSPITAL'S CORNER STONE NEXT SUNDAY

Corner stone laying ceremonies for the new Wesley Memorial hospital will be held Sunday afternoon at Fairbanks court and Superior street. Dr. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of Northwestern university, and Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, will lead the services. The new hospital will be 20 stories high and will contain 525 beds. It is to be the first unit in a group of buildings to be known as the George Herbert Jones Hospital center. Mr. Jones, vice president of the Wesley hospital board of trustees, donated the money for the new building.

DRIVES 2 BLOCKS WITH AN INJURED BOY ON BUMPER

A motorist last night carried an injured boy nearly two blocks on the front bumper of his car intending, he later told police, to take him to the hospital in that position to save time. The motorist, Kurt Ulrich, 34 years old, 4828 Wabansia avenue, a machinist, was held by Austin police.

The victim was Richard Earnest, 9, of 950 North Latrobe avenue. He was struck in Laramie avenue near Augusta boulevard, and caught in the bumper. Ulrich drove on until stopped by lights at Division street. A witness told him of the boy on the bumper and Ulrich then took him to St. Anne's hospital. The boy suffered fractures of both legs, a possible skull fracture, and possible internal injuries.

Ulrich told Policeman James Stanton that he knew the boy was on his front bumper, but that he drove on anyhow, figuring that he would save time by not stopping to put him into the car.

Edmond Osika, 30 years old, a painter, of 15735 Woodbridge avenue, Harvey, was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile at Halsted and 157th streets, Phoenix. Thomas Johnson, colored, of 1525 Union avenue, Chicago Heights, was the driver of the car.

John Shufelt, 54 years old, of Moline, died yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries incurred April 22 in a car collision at 68th street and Emerald avenue. The driver of the car in which Shufelt was riding was James Burton, Moline. The other driver was Carl Beckstrom, 7732 Perry avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 321 persons had been killed in traffic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 245 were killed in Chicago, where 7,986 were injured during the same period.

AGAIN...NO MILK

FOR the second time within a month milk deliveries in Chicago and many of its suburbs have been stopped.

Union milk wagon drivers are on strike. Under such a condition, dealers have no way of serving their customers.

To everyone, this is, at least, a serious annoyance. Justly, they ask:

"WHAT IS THE REASON FOR ALL THIS? WHY DOES IT HAPPEN?"

On the surface the answer is simple. It is a result of a disagreement between two parties—the Milk Wagon Drivers' Union and the Chicago milk dealers.

But in reality, it is more deep-seated than that. This is more than a private dispute between employer and employee over a question of how much money should be paid for how much work. It is a matter of vital concern to every resident of Chicago. On its outcome hangs the answer to the question:

WHAT CAN BE DONE ABOUT THE COST OF MILK IN CHICAGO?

Union milk drivers are paid a base wage and a commission on sales. This, under the contract which expired May 1, brought the weekly income of the average driver to $52—the highest scale paid in any city in the United States.

To reduce milk prices, this delivery system must be made less expensive.

A major portion of its cost is labor, and since we felt that our drivers share with us a responsibility to keep delivery service economical, we proposed a wage revision which, with a lower base rate but higher commissions, would make the average weekly income approximately $40.

Milk is available at all our plants and distributing branches for all our customers who wish to come and get it. This milk will be sold as long as it lasts.

This is in NO WAY intended to affect the present issue with our union employees. It is not an attempt to provide a substitute service for theirs. It represents simply an emergency means of making milk available to those families who must have it.

This proposal has been the subject of intermittent negotiations since April 22. During this period, the old wage scale has been maintained. But we have made no substantial progress toward a settlement.

In order that the public would not be inconvenienced while we were striving for agreement, we proposed to the Union that the entire matter be submitted to arbitration. The Union has failed to accept this.

The present strike followed.

In our negotiations, we have not told our drivers that they were getting too much money.

But we have insisted that the cost of the service they perform must be reduced from the present level of 4 cents per quart for milk delivered at the doorstep.

What we are trying to accomplish is a less expensive delivery service for our customers which will support a fair wage for our employees.

OLD SIWASH GETS INTO FILMS WITH BEARDS OF 1904

Ankle Length Skirts Give Co-eds a Prim Look.

BY BRUCE DENNIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Galesburg, Ill., May 19.—Walk into a cigar store and the clerk who leaps to wait on you is wearing a Van Dyke; drive into a filling station and the attendant greets you thru handlebar mustaches; an ancient horseless carriage putts protestingly down the street; on the sidewalks girls in high necked shirtwaists and ankle length skirts are pretty and try to be prim.

George H. Fitch.

This is Galesburg, 1940, transforming itself into Galesburg, 1904.

What has induced the 30,000 Galesburg citizens to turn back clock and calendar? It is the world première of the motion picture, "Those Were the Days," which will be held at the Orpheum theater here Tuesday night. The film is based on the stories of George H. Fitch, who wrote rollickingly of a college he called Old Siwash.

Alma Mater Recognized.

Every one knew Fitch was writing of Knox college, his Galesburg alma mater. The school and city were founded at the same time—1837—by Pastor George W. Gale and a band of pioneers from Whitesboro, N. Y. They named the college for Gen. Henry Knox, who was George Washington's chief of artillery. Now the soft, huge stone buildings and the towering trees of Knox campus, with the faces and forms of some 400 of its 600 male students and co-eds, have been transferred to celluloid for the cinema trade.

Knox and Galesburg have been movie minded since last fall when J. Theodore Reed, Paramount producer director, turned up with a cast of players, including Ellen Drew, Bonita Granville, Judith Barrett, William Holden, J. Carroll Naish, and Lynn Overman, and began shooting scenes. Students were hired as extras—and if textbooks were not wholly forgotten, they at least were read sparingly for 10 days.

Grow Beards or Be "Jailed."

As the première approaches, the townspeople have joined the students in plans for making the day one that Galesburg will remember—remember perhaps as long as it has remembered the fifth of the Lincoln-Douglas debates, held on the steps of Old Main, campus landmark, in 1858.

One of the town contributions has been Whiskerville, an organization of 200 hairy jowled males—railroad men, clerks, and business executives who collectively have sprouted tons of facial foliage. They elected their own mayor, Lee Gunther, a Burlington fireman; their own police chief, Perry Bradshaw, a cigar retailer, and other officers. Men caught shaving were thrown into a cage built on Main street. The spirit of 1904, time of the movie, must be preserved.

Student Houses Decorated.

Near the campus, fraternity and sorority houses are gay with bunting —both for the première and because today is Mother's day at Knox. At the Beta Theta Pi house, the brothers got out the picture of George Fitch, class of 1897, and were regretful he could not be here. Fitch died in 1915 at the age of 38. In Knox annals he ranks with other graduate literary greats, Eugene Field and Edgar Lee Masters. His widow will arrive tomorrow from her home in Eugene, Ore.

Dr. Carter Davidson, 11th president of the college, thinks Knox's entrance into the movies has been beneficial for both school and students. In his views Dr. Davidson may be safely said to differ from Jonathan Blanchard, second president, who once tried to stop the railroads from running trains on Sunday.

Dr. Davidson belongs to 1940, not 1904. He stands well over 6 feet, has an athlete's build, and speaks in a low voice. His eyes have a humorous sparkle, making it easy to understand why students like him. This morning he preached at the Presbyterian church on "Turning Back the Clock."

Wealth of Experience.

"This picture business is a good thing for the school," said Dr. Davidson later in his home, "as long as it is not allowed to disrupt classes. And it has not. The students who worked in it got a world of experience with [a twinkle] $5 a day. They learned that a Hollywood career means hard work; the boys and girls who got up at 6 in the morning to be in the picture said they earned their money."

OLD PAPER LISTS 17 WARS.

This is a warring world today, but a copy of a Woodland, Cal., newspaper for 1864 found by Delmus Fenton as he was working on a house lists 17 different wars going on at that time.

COMMITTEE OF 3 TO PRESS CITY'S WAR AID CLAIMS

Plan Trip to Washington to Seek Army Contracts.

A committee of three, headed by Oscar G. Mayer, president of the Association of Commerce, will go to Washington this week to press advantages offered by Chicago for the manufacture of war materials in the proposed 11 hundred million dollar rearmament program.

Oscar G. Mayer.

Committee members will call to attention of war department officials Chicago's superiority as a site for airplane factories, and to facilities offered for production of goods necessary to an army.

President Mayer, who will be accompanied by Leverett S. Lyon, executive officer of the Association of Commerce, and E. P. Querl, industrial department manager, plan to leave Wednesday or Thursday. They will call on Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war in charge of procurement; Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, and Gen. H. H. Arnold chief of the air corps.

As another step in Chicago's drive for its share of the national defense fund asked by President Roosevelt, Senator Harold G. Ward, Democratic majority leader, announced he would move for passage of a resolution memorializing the President and congress to take advantage of Chicago facilities. He will be joined by Senator Arthur J. Bidwill [R., River Forest] and Representatives Joseph L. Rategan [D., Chicago] and Elmer Schnackenberg [R., Chicago].

The resolution will show that 2,662 Chicago firms and 251,000 workmen are available and prepared for war production, and ask large war orders for these firms.

Members of the Association of Commerce committee, aided by the drive of army, navy, and administration officials to move airplane plants from exposed seaboard areas, will point out that land is available for factories adjacent to six airports in the Chicago area. These airports are the Chicago, Air Activities in West Chicago, Curtiss-Reynolds, Ashburn, Ford Lansing, and a Harvey port.

"Chicago should now come into its own," President Mayer said. "Chicago can take care of the monetary and physical needs for airport factories, and the government apparently is in a mood to come here. Owners of land adjacent to airports are ready to cooperate, and handy transportation adds to the advantages offered."

He said Chicago has a lower freight rate from the source of rolled aluminum sheet, necessary to airplane building, than any other city engaged in major aircraft manufacture, and that Chicago has an ample supply of labor skilled in close machine shop work.

The Association of Commerce committee also will cite Chicago's readiness to manufacture other necessary army supplies.

CAR LOT OWNER SINKS; SHOOTING PROBE SPURRED

Police and the state's attorney's office yesterday continued their investigation of the mysterious shooting Friday of Benjamin D. Kissel, owner of a number of loop parking lots. Kissel was shot in the abdomen as he was about to enter his apartment at 502 Briar place.

His condition was reported to be worse, and all visitors were barred from his room in the Columbus Memorial hospital. Capt. Frank Reynolds and Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Curtis said a detailed statement will be taken from him today.

He told investigators he had trouble with the central parking council, from which he withdrew several months ago. He said he was encountering difficulties in his plans to erect a garage on the present site of the La Salle theater, 110 West Madison street. After hearing this, police questioned Nicholas R. Dispenza, 3260 Lake Shore drive, an official of the council and president of the Downtown Parking Stations, Inc.

Kissel said Dispenza had threatened him. Dispenza denied making threats and said the conversation was nothing more than a business talk.

The sponsoring posts were Belmont No. 597, John F. Connelly No. 221, Gladstone No. 777, Portage Park No. 183, La Fayette No. 159, Logan Square No. 405, and Melin-Romer No. 728.

THE THIRD TERM IN ITS TRUE LIGHT.

The third termers are trying, as was expected, to turn the war excitement to their advantage. They think their timing has been good. They could foresee that the news of a German drive on Paris would cause a series of shocks in this country. It would present what might be the finale of a struggle for power in a world to be shaped by the outcome. Sentiment would be deeply stirred.

Mr. Roosevelt dramatized the moment before congress. Many people who had not lost their heads began to show signs of having them turned. Commentators and public men began to talk nonsense about the united front, the adjournment of politics, and the rally around Roosevelt, the indispensable. It was proposed that the Republican convention should not be held and that there should be no election.

This is hysteria taking high jumps. When people sober down a little they will find that the timing was not good. It put the third term in its proper light just when it should be studied in relation to external and internal difficulties.

If the remainder of this year is to be one of great anxiety for the American people it ought not to find them divided by a serious constitutional question affecting their form of government. The third term will present a constitutional question. Tradition and usage have added an unwritten provision which declares it the sense of the country that a President shall not serve more than two terms. The tradition has never been broken. The first attempt to break it, particularly at this time when dictatorship is causing so much trouble and creating so much alarm, would divide the American people as they have not been divided since civil war days.

Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy will do that. No other man's will. He alone can divide the country and he will if he demands renomination and gets it. The United States will go at once into a disrupting struggle, one it should avoid if there are external dangers. If there were no other reasons to stop all third term talk the war abroad is enough. It makes Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy a national danger.

He has proved himself incompetent to manage the peacetime economy of the United States. If the country is unprepared to meet emergency it is his fault. He spent the money. As a wartime executive he would be a greater disaster.

The third termers speak of his experience as something which will be indispensable to the nation for another four years, whatever happens abroad or at home. The worse things get abroad and at home the more Mr. Roosevelt's experience, so say the third termers, will be needed to pull this country thru. Against Mr. Roosevelt's experience the American people may set their own. Their experience in the two terms should convince them that they could not stand a third term. In experience vs. experience the people have had the worst of it.

The experience of the people has been with the deepest and most protracted depression the country ever had. It has been an experience with constantly increasing debt and taxation, of stagnation in private investment, of continued and undiminished unemployment, and of continued and undiminished subsidies and doles.

The experience Mr. Roosevelt has gained has been in doing things from which the people suffer. It is an item in his experience that he must ask, in the eighth year of his two terms in the White House, for 1 billion 111 million dollars to be spent for relief, nearly a billion of it to be expended as he sees fit in the next eight months.

Mr. Roosevelt's experience has made him adroit in the use of public funds in the year of a national election. The reports to congress are full of the scandals of it. The amount Mr. Roosevelt asks to relieve destitution by methods unknown in this country until he became President is about the amount he asks for emergency defense. The emergency is one created by his administration.

These are some of the experiences Mr. Roosevelt has had in the White House and they are some of the experiences the people have had with him as head of government. The record indicates to any person who will examine it that the country would have the greatest difficulty in surviving four more years of this as a self-governing, representative democracy. The planned society of which Mr. Roosevelt is the chief architect has brought the country to the choice between finding another executive or taking another form of government, which will impose on the American people the economic conditions prevailing in Europe.

The people of Europe went into economic servitude because they were not in time able to get out of conditions such as Mr. Roosevelt's experience is imposing upon this country. It may be that when the third termers refer to the value of Mr. Roosevelt's experience they mean that, having prepared the country for a collapse into either economic anarchy or economic autocracy, he is the one man fitted to manage the autocracy. If you concede that that autocracy is desirable, the point about Mr. Roosevelt's experience can be taken into consideration with more intelligence.

THE STOCK MARKET COLLAPSE.

Previous to last week there was a widely held view that a great stock boom would develop as soon as the war became violent. How mistaken a financial forecast can be was shown by the action of the markets last week while the fiercest battle of all time was being fought. Prices of stocks broke out of the narrow bounds of 10 points, within which the fluctuation had been confined for the previous 8 months, and plunged downward 22½ points during the week. It was the most disastrous decline since 1929.

Grains and some other commodities were as weak as stocks. July wheat, which sold for $1.08¾ the preceding Saturday, reached 74½ and closed the week at 78¾ cents, a net loss of 30 cents a bushel in six market days.

The obvious explanation of last week's panic is that the market sees the likely success of the blitzkrieg and the overthrow of the allies and is taking account of the economic conditions which will prevail if all Europe and most of the non-European parts of the British and French empires are brought under Hitler's sway. Some other factors may have contributed to the sell-off. The pound did not drop when the battle went against the allies, and it may have been held up with the proceeds of stocks being sold in our market. The intensification of the war may have forced both the British and the French to sell stocks to raise funds. Hitler may have laid his hands on some of the securities owned by wealthy Hollanders and quickly reduced them to cash. The decline may have been accentuated by the inability of Dutch speculators to meet margin calls in New York with their bank accounts frozen by action of the American government.

And certainly the panic was accentuated by the SEC thru restrictions placed upon officers, directors, and large stockholders in leading companies. The law prohibits the insiders and large owners of stock from placing support orders for stock in their company unless they keep the stock for more than six months. If they sell out earlier the profit, if any, must be paid to the corporation. If there is a loss on a support transaction the insider must bear it himself. John D. Rockefeller, father and son, placed an order for a million shares of Standard Oil stock at $50 in 1929 to stabilize the markets. Under the SEC's "heads you don't win and tails you lose" arrangement the Rockefellers couldn't have acted.

The market may be correct in its appraisal of the outcome of the war as related to our economy. One suggestion that the quick action of the market was not based upon sober judgment is the action of airplane company stocks. Previous to last week these stocks were not selling appreciably higher than they were a few years ago when business was only a fraction of that already on the books. Even if the war is over tomorrow America is going to arm, and these companies are going to be making warplanes on a scale never before conceived of. These companies can have large earnings on the government's 12 per cent margin if the government supplies the capital, as will be done under the President's plan. The fact that the airplane stocks crashed with the rest of the list suggests that last week's markets were influenced more by hysteria than by calm reflection.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

It was 23 years ago today that THE TRIBUNE carried the front page announcement of a new department, the Beg Your Pardon column, devoted to correction of errors of fact appearing in its news columns. While conscientious newspapers have always stood ready to correct facts they have misstated, this was the first establishment, to our knowledge then and now, of a regular department to handle such complaints.

We have never taken the pains to count the separate statements of fact that appear in a single edition of THE TRIBUNE, but they must be numbered in the hundreds—even excluding the tabular statistics of the markets and sports sections. In spite of an inspection and checking system that passes each piece of copy thru a half dozen or more hands before it appears in the paper, some of these facts are misstated.

That so few of them are misstated is a tribute to the Tribune's editorial staff and its meticulous backstops, the proofreaders, but this is small comfort to the person who is injured when an error does appear. It is to undo such injuries as thoroly as quick correction makes possible that the Beg Your Pardon column has been maintained these last 23 years.

To the vast majority of our readers a large number of the corrections that appear in the Beg Your Pardon column may appear trivial. The editors and staff of THE TRIBUNE do not regard any error as trivial, for the reason that while it may be inconsequential to 999,999 of their million readers, it can seriously disturb the remaining one. That disturbance or injury they are anxious to rectify.

The rules for the operation of the Beg Your Pardon column have not changed since it was founded. If you have a complaint make it by letter, not by telephone. [As an exception, a telephone call will make possible the correction of an error in an early evening edition before the later editions issued the next morning go to press.] If your case seems to require exhibitory proof of your contention of error, bring or send the proof to THE TRIBUNE. Finally, remember that the Beg Your Pardon column is for the correction of misstatements of fact, not differences of opinion. If you differ with opinions expressed in THE TRIBUNE, address the Voice of the People.

THE DEVASTATING PORKER.

[Illinois State Journal.]

Reasons given for the creation of a vast packing establishment in northern Queensland excite attention. The idea is to get rid of a surplus of wild hogs. Instead of killing off and burying little pigs and sows, an attempt will be made to convert the wild porkers into marketable meat.

The Queensland porker, introduced by Capt. Cook 200 years ago, is pretty much of a pest. He thrives on mast and multiplies rapidly. He is impervious to cholera and other ills common to civilized hogs. Complaint is made that he is given to the destruction of native wild animals, birds, and flower bulbs. He gangs up to invade cultivated fields.

Capt. Cook's benevolent experiment in providing Queensland with hogs turned out, on a big scale, much like Illinois' brief experience with hogs in a state park. The hogs were introduced to clear the park of rattlesnakes and they made a magnificent success of their snake killing.

In digging out the rattlers, however, the hogs converted the park into a botanical and ornithological shambles, and threw the Audubon societies into a state of agitation bordering on hysteria. Director of Public Works Harry Cleaveland had to get rid of the overambitious snake killing pets.

ANYTHING GOOD TO READ?

William Faulkner's latest job in hysterical fiction about atrocious characters of the deep south, "The Hamlet," went back to the circulating library after a mere skimming. We will concede him any highbrow prize in sight as the world's worst stylist.

Thomas Mann's "The Magic Mountain," German fiction of the pre-Hitler period, is listed among the world's 100 greatest books for young masterminds at the University of Chicago. Maybe the second volume has something, but the first is stopping us rapidly. We are finding it a textbook on the alpine sanitarium treatment of tuberculosis, with some rumble-bumble philosophy about the concept of time tossed in.

* * *

Mortimer Adler's "How to Read a Book," which appears to be running like Bimelech among the best sellers, has a predecessor in the late J. B. Kerfoot's "How to Read," published in 1916. The few people who remember it seem to think that it is better than Adler's.

"Convert to Freedom," by Eitel Wolf Dobert, recently published, will comfort you with its message that young Germans are capable of failing away from the Nazi creed. The author was a former leader of a Hitler Storm Troop.

We find this in Julia Cooley Altrocchi's historical novel of the Northwest Territory, "Wolves Against the Moon":

"Checagou means Ill Smelling Place—Place of the Wild Onion, or Place of the Skunk."

But old John Kinzie answers the taunt with, "I for one am glad I'm going to live at Checagou."

CANDLES AND ALTAR.

I watched the altar boy put out the candles,
Gently, softly, he touched them one by one,
And I felt sudden sorrow at their going—
The church seemed empty, dull, when he had done;
And yet their golden beauty lingered with me,
I knew that some day they would shine once more,
That later he would come again and light them,
And they would gleam as they had done before.

I wondered, then, does God reach out and gently
Put out our light when it is time to go?
For just a little space are we left resting?
Then lighted to a stronger, lovelier glow?
If this is true why need we fear the darkness
Or weep and grieve when others go away?
Tho for a while it seems the light has left us,
Its radiance will come again and come to stay.

Last Call for Jowl and Greens.

The "jowl and greens" controversy which has been raging in this column lately has been referred to William Shinnick, formerly of Lexington, Ky., now of the Tribune editorial staff, as umpire. He decides that every one is right, whether they're voting for turnip, beet, kale, mustard or dandelion greens, because, says Bill, the way to get the tastiest mess of greens is to mix them. Kale, favored vigorously by another Lexingtonian, William P. Welsh, the Chicago artist, is too strong for use alone, says our Bill, unless you're a powerful eater.

Furthermore, George L. Deverall, who has been active in the controversy, reports that Negro restaurants around 33d and State streets serve jowl and greens frequently.

And incidentally, the southern pronunciation of "jowl" to rhyme with "bowl" is correct, according to Webster.

Short History of an Ancient Column.

A century ago there stood, near the present site of the Tribune Tower, the first house built in Chicago—John Kinzie's residence. A modest little place, sentineled by poplars, in a serene and peaceful setting. Not much of life is there; a few birds gaily circling above; a wagon rumbling up the country road [now called Boul. Mich.]; waves lightly lapping a canoe drawn to the river's bank. While Kinzie, fishing from the grassy slope—throws out a line.

Mists fall. The mist of years. Lifting, to find upon this very spot a lofty tower, rising in Gothic splendor to the sky. Far down below, where cattle grazed in Kinzie's day, a fevered world tosses and turns. While you, sir! sitting high within the tower—throw out a Line. Shandy Gaff.

DIRGE BECOMES DANCE.

The daylight darkens into night,
The wind blows fresh and cold;
Earth's joys elude our dimming sight,
And we are old.

Our youth becomes a faded dream
That mocks across the years;
Tomorrow is a thinning gleam
That tells new fears.

Our old-time visions lie about,
The rags of dreams that were;
Life's altar is a shrine without
A worshiper.

There are no further goals for us,
Who now are weak and faint;
We mark the sexton's holes for us
Without complaint. . . .

O, come, dismiss the graveyard muse;
Life's still a corking show!
It's spring; put on your hiking shoes—
Let's go!

How to Compliment an Actress.

From the unpublished memoirs of Patricia Collinge, now acting in "The Little Foxes":

"As I came out of the theater a woman rushed up to me and said, 'O, Miss Collinge, I saw your performance tonight, and I do want to tell you how much I enjoy the things you write for the New Yorker.' . . . I am still brooding about it."

One of those dummy newspapers that give you any headline you want, three for 50 cents, announces:

"Hitler Gives World 24 Hours to Get Out."
Leonard H. Fischer.

The sun dial on the campus of St. Xavier College for Women says:

THE "BENT TWIG" BACKBONE.

WHILE the spinal column—viewed from the side—represents an elongated, slim letter "S" it should be as straight as an arrow when seen from the back. If it leans one way or the other—we recognize a lateral curvature [scoliosis]. A minor degree of this out-of-line tendency is often overlooked and, occasionally, the trouble is concealed by the patient. This is unfortunate for, if detected and treated early—severe bending can be avoided.

The condition is characterized by a deviation of the bones of the spine from the normal plumb midline position. But other structures may be involved. The ribs are frequently deformed. This leads to compression of the lungs — which brings on shortness of breath. If the curve affects the lower portion, the abdominal organs may be compressed and a chain of unpleasant symptoms may ensue.

The causes are extremely numerous, altho in many instances no definite single "starter" can be found. It may be congenital—a well defined sway being apparent during the first few weeks of life. This may arise because of an extra or a missing rib or a malformed vertebra.

In the type that comes later, rickets plays a large part. The feeding of cod liver oil [vitamin D] has made this variety much less common than it was a few years ago. Nevertheless—once allowed to start—it advances rapidly and usually remains fixed even after the disease itself is arrested.

Another origin is infantile paralysis, a malady which has no direct effect upon the spine but—by paralyzing groups of muscles—may produce an asymmetry and a steady, uneven pull on the skeleton. Wry neck and empyema [pus in the pleural cavity] may be followed by a spinal twist. Other sources are: diseases of the nervous system, or unequal length of the legs which comes from an injury to or an infection within the hip joint.

We may exaggerate the difficulty by abdominal strain such as lifting, etc. In children, a slouching gait, badly designed furniture, poor lighting, fatigue, and dim vision have been advanced as possible influences. Girls are more often bothered than boys and the age of onset is generally before the 12th year.

The vital thing in management is correction of the cause—at least the stopping of further distortion. Great care in the return to activity of a victim of infantile paralysis is very important. During recovery, the legs should be supported and the child should not be allowed to stand before the strength of the back muscles is determined. When he can raise himself unaided, he may be permitted to sit for short periods. Massage and muscle training are not to be overlooked at this time.

In those children with faulty postures the outlook is very favorable. Every attempt must be made to bring about correct sitting and standing, and the furniture that the child uses should be correctly planned. Gymnastics have been worked out which are of great benefit to these sufferers.

Forcible readjustment is often necessary and the principle of treatment is to change the posture so that it inclines markedly in the opposite direction. This helps to offset the forces of gravity which are likely to increase the bend. To accomplish this the trunk is supported by a plaster of Paris jacket. If the curve is high in the spine, the head must also be included in the harness. These firm "prisons" are changed at intervals of several weeks and each time an effort is made to better the alignment.

In those cases wherein the disorder not only persists but appears to be progressing, surgery may be called for. The objective is to fuse the vertebrae so that the backbone becomes a rigid rod. In the hands of a capable orthopedic surgeon the procedure has considerable merit.

It may be said then that, when mild, scoliosis can be either arrested or cured. Those of moderate degree can practically always be aided and, in the majority of patients, greatly improved. Extreme cases can nearly all be relieved—certainly prevented from becoming worse.

VAGUS NERVE?

T. T. writes: What is the vagus nerve? Where is it located? What is its function?

REPLY.

This is sometimes called the tenth or pneumogastric nerve. It arises from the side of the medulla [at the base of the brain] and sends branches to the larynx, lungs, heart, esophagus, stomach, and other abdominal organs. It carries both sensation and motor fibers.

INSECT CIRCULATION.

I. H. writes: Do insects have blood? What color is it?

REPLY.

Insects have a circulating fluid [blood] which is yellowish-white or greenish. It flows everywhere in the body without the necessity of arteries and veins. The heart is a long, pulsating tube extending thru the entire length.

FREQUENT URINATION.

T. C. writes: What causes frequent urination at night in a man of 50?

REPLY.

Enlargement or inflammation of the prostate. The bladder should also be considered as infection within this pouch may be responsible.

50,000 AIRPLANES.

Chicago, May 16.—According to President Roosevelt he is determined to face the fact realistically "that this nation requires a toughness of moral and physical fiber."

So, after more than seven long years of consistent destruction of the moral and physical fiber of the country and its people, we are going to turn and require it.

So, from here on, the man who just won't work won't eat and the man who is able will at least be permitted to work more than 40 hours per week; and the man who is so timid that his employer cannot talk to him freely will be expected to buck up his courage; and the old man who is able and wants to work may be permitted to go on doing so; and the ambitious young man will be permitted to work long enough and hard enough to earn more than a bare living; and strikers will be expected to strike without the benefit of unemployment compensation, and so on, without end.

Surely, some one ought to tell the President the truth—namely, that there are not enough skilled workmen in the United States to build 50,000 airplanes in five years, unless we should stop building everything else, including the tools with which to build the airplanes.

And, maybe, some one should point out to the President Admiral Greenslade's article in the United States News a couple of weeks ago, in which he pointed out, in effect, that it does not make any difference how much money we spend, we cannot keep up with the Japanese in a navy building race with the labor laws, regulations, and conditions under which our shipbuilding must operate.

When somebody asks "where has our 7 billion dollars gone," it might be interesting to them to note that Admiral Greenslade states that it costs more than twice as much for us to build a battleship as it does the Japanese, even tho we have the raw materials right here, and that the Japanese get more than nine times as much effective labor for a dollar as we do.

I am not in favor of the Japanese scale of living, but if we are going to enter the war armament race on a plan which accommodates 50,000 airplanes, we had better get free of some of this government-sponsored labor monopoly, or we will be on a lower scale of living than the Japanese.

The established manufacturers in England are now complaining that new and inexperienced manufacturers rushing into the sudden orgy of war supplying are bidding away the trained employés of the established manufacturers and making it impossible for them to perform their functions.

I am sure the President has been told of the already alarming difficulties arising out of navy yards and armories hiring away the limited skilled help of established manufacturers.

I wonder what concern the President has given to the restrictions under federal and state laws, and under labor union monopolistic practices with regard to the training of the vital skilled labor that must be trained before there can be any appreciable increase in our defense building program.

I just hope that congress or somebody else builds a hot enough fire under the responsible heads in the army and the navy so that in their own defense they will have to tell this country the almost impossible handicaps that congress, the state legislatures, and the labor unions have placed upon the building of an army or navy. READER.

SHAME ON YOU, MOTHERS:

Chicago, May 16.—How selfish the American mothers are. It is a surprise to hear that they oppose sending a son or two to fight for England. What does it matter if your son is blinded by mustard gas or has an arm or a leg blown off? They can get into a veterans' hospital or a soldiers' home when they come back if they have a drag with a New Deal politician. BUCK PRIVATE, 33d Division.

ROOSEVELT'S DISCOVERY.

Chicago, May 16.—Listening to Roosevelt's message to congress today, one would get the impression that he had just discovered that in modern warfare the enemy uses airplanes, guns, parachutes, bombs, tanks, and other modern equipment, and that if he did not personally tell congress and broadcast it by radio, the secret would not be known by any one but himself.

If he had read THE TRIBUNE for the last seven years he would have known that his administration has been criticized because we have a large army "doleing" over picks and shovels instead of an army rolling along in motorized equipment, preparing to meet the enemy.

When the President said, "Build 50,000 planes immediately," it reminds us of Bryan's statement during the last world war when he said "a million men will spring to arms over night." DANIEL ANDERSON.

PITY THE POOR STUDENT.

Chicago, May 18.—Andrew Lobell and a teacher, L. H. A., write in this department of the overworked high school students with too many subjects and homework, making their day from 8 to 10 hours. 'It is pitiful. I recall my school days under a wisecracking Hoosier schoolmaster with red whiskers.

Home work and play consisted of serving as milkmaid and calf herder for three cows. Separating a husky gentleman calf from his dinner is a large job for a small boy. Then we had a regular errand job for evenings and Saturdays, and there was an ever present wood pile to take up the slack time. Ah, yes, the high school freshmen are missing some interesting subjects. HOOSIER.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE.

Chicago, May 17.—Over the world, separated only by invisible boundary lines, are the "little men"; minor figures in the scheme of life, whose only desire is to live peacefully, enjoy the comforts of family life, and in some measure contribute to the progress of mankind.

The "little man," preoccupied with the simple necessities of his humble life, has not fully understood the terrific power of the propaganda forces unleashed by the few "big men," whose selfish desire is to enter the pages of history.

The "little fellow," with a sublime but unjustified belief in the wisdom of the powers that be, has accepted this guidance toward national destiny. He dimly grasps the viewpoint that economical conditions require more territory, bigger resources, or that the new frontier to be defended is just over the horizon. But he alone pays the price, in blood, taxes, and a destroyed future; not the "big fellow."

The men who gather about the table and start the war are usually the identical men who sit at the same table and settle it. But the short interval between the two steps is the end of millions of men.

Prepare to meet aggression, yes. But remember the deliberate aggrandizement of the few, on the pages of history, is poor consolation to the row upon row of little white crosses of the "little men." ARTHUR E. PYE, Ex-Gunner's Mate, U. S. N.

A LITTLE ECONOMY, TOO.

Chicago, May 17.—If we are to build up our national defenses without bankrupting our nation, then all the fads and frills, inefficiency, and graft will have to be eliminated not only in our federal government, but in our state and local governments as well.

Our biggest job at present will be to awaken the interest Americans have in their country, but which they allow to lie dormant; sometimes until it is almost too late. R. M. L.

CHATTEL MORTGAGE.

Macomb, Ill., May 15 [Legal Friend of the People].—Four years ago a business was purchased, a substantial down payment made, and a mortgage given on the equipment for the balance of the purchase price. Payments with interest were made for some time. Then the mortgagee was unable to pay and wrote the holder of the mortgage his reasons for not being able to do so. No more has been heard from the holder of the mortgage nor are his whereabouts known. It is three years since the mortgage was due in full. It has not been renewed.

1. Can the owner of the business now sell the business?
2. Is a chattel mortgage good for only one year without renewal? Could the mortgage be renewed without the mortgagee's knowledge? R. D. B.

1. Since the record of a chattel mortgage is notice for three years only, presumably the mortgage debtor "can" sell without mentioning the mortgage, but of course he ought not to do so.
2. See 1. The mortgage continues binding between the original parties.

TERMS OF WILL.

Bloomington, Ill., May 15 [Legal Friend of the People].—Where a parent leaves a will and there are several children [1] can all the property bequeathed be left to one child [2] without any mention of any of the others, by name only, or [3] must the names of these other children be at least mentioned so that these latter cannot attempt to break the will at a later date?
4. Can either real estate or personal property be given to this one child by the parent prior to the death of the latter without any possible rights of any of the other children [5] to sue this one child for a division of same at a later date? C. H. Y.

1. Yes.
2. Yes.
3. There is no such rule of law, but it may be advisable to mention the children in order to anticipate the argument that they were merely overlooked and that this shows a lack of mental capacity in the testator.
4. Yes. A parent who has full mental capacity and is not subjected to undue influence can disinherit his children.
5. Of course they can sue.

Citizens of Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, outraged by the oppressive rule of their provincial governor, drew up a declaration of independence from England. News of the fighting at Lexington and Concord reached them during the meeting and caused an outburst of enthusiasm. Altho the story of the first "declaration" has been questioned, it is generally believed to have been the first formal action of its kind in the colonies.

NEW F.-M. STYLE OF BROADCASTING GIVEN APPROVAL

Frequency Band Is Made Available by FCC.

Washington, D. C., May 19 [Special].—Asserting that frequency modulation on a commercial basis is desirable in the public interest, the Federal Communications commission today announced the availability for it of the radio frequency band of 42,000 to 50,000 kilocycles. This will provide 40 channels, each 200 kilocycles wide—35 to regular high frequency broadcast stations and five to noncommercial educational broadcast stations.

The commission hailed frequency modulation as one of the most significant contributions to radio in recent years.

"Frequency modulation is highly developed," the commission said in a unanimous report. "It is ready to move forward on a broad scale and on a full commercial basis. On this point there is complete agreement among the engineers of both the manufacturing and the broadcasting industries.

Demand for Stations Cited.

"A substantial demand for F.-M. transmitting stations for full operation exists today. A comparable public demand for receiving sets is predicted. It can be expected, therefore, that this advancement in the broadcasting art will create employment for thousands of persons in the manufacturing, installation, and maintenance of transmitting and receiving equipment and the programming of such stations."

It is not believed the new F.-M. service will supplant present broadcasting stations, or make obsolete the receivers now in use, because frequency modulation is effective only from 45 to 100 miles. This means high powered, clear channel stations will be needed indefinitely for widespread rural coverage.

The FCC said testimony at its hearings indicated that in time manufacturers will provide receiving sets capable of receiving both services. There was unanimous agreement that F.-M. is superior to amplitude modification for broadcasting on frequencies above 25,000 kilocycles. The commission said it believes regular program service should begin on a broad 200 kilocycle band basis, which can be reduced if developments warrant without making broad band receivers obsolete.

More Stations Possible.

Establishment of the new broadcast band in the higher frequencies will enable many more communities to have their own broadcast stations, because F.-M. stations can operate on the same channel with much less mileage separation than is possible with standard broadcast stations. F.-M. stations will be rated on the basis of coverage rather than power, the commission said, and their coverage, unlike that of certain standard broadcast stations, will be the same both day and night.

Applications for F.-M. broadcast stations will be considered by the commission when revised rules and regulations are promulgated and new application forms are made available. Meanwhile, pending applications for experimental stations filed under the old rules will be dismissed without prejudice, and authorization of existing ones will be terminated by Jan. 1 for the filing of new applications for either experimental or regular F.-M. broadcasting, the commission explained.

Licenses for experimental F.-M. stations are held by Maj. Edwin H. Armstrong, inventor of the wide band broadcasting, in Alpine, N. J.; the Yankee network in New England; RCA-NBC in New York; WGY, Schenectady, N. Y., and the Zenith Radio corporation in Chicago.

Many License Applications.

Among F.-M. applications to be dismissed are those of W-G-N and several other Chicago stations, 55 members of Frequency Modulation Broadcasters, Inc., which includes W-G-N, and nearly 100 others.

Ultrahigh radio frequencies have been readjusted to provide the 40 F.-M. channels between 40,000 and 50,000 kilocycles, as well as seven channels below 108,000 kilocycles, for television service. The arrangement gives private services priority rights between 60,000 and 66,000 kilocycles and between 118,000 and 119,000 kilocycles in exchange for relinquishment to the government of bands 41,000 to 42,000 kilocycles and 132,000 to 140,000 kilocycles.

The new allocations become effective immediately on a limited basis. After Jan. 1 unlimited operation may be used. Regular commercial service employing wide banded F.-M., which may include the multiplexing of facsimile transmission simultaneously with a rural broadcasting, will use the 40,000 to 50,000 kilocycle band, the commission said, and noncommercial educational broadcasting stations are given the new frequencies 42,100, 42,300, 42,500, 42,700, and 42,900 kilocycles.

ONE ARM BANDIT IS OUT; NOW IT'S A PIN BALL GAME

But It Gathers In the Nickels, Anyway.

One arm bandits have become outmoded, Sunday motorists discovered, and the appearance of a new type of coin-capturing machine was reported. Up to yesterday the new style camouflaged bandit had not stepped on the toes of the county highway police, altho 105 of the old variety got into chancery Friday night, thereby giving business to two courts today.

The up to date device is said to be just as much a slot machine as that kind into which a chump would feed coins with one hand while pulling down a lever with the other. The difference is that now the man, woman, or child with the coin pulls outwardly on a small metal handle, lets go, and a steel ball is thereupon propelled forward.

Looks Like Pin Ball Game.

At first glance the contraption appears to be one of the so-called pin ball machines. Like them it is set on four supports and is cased in wood framework with a glass top. The course of the steel ball can be followed as it goes forward and then, because of the tilt of the surface, it rolls back.

On its way the ball touches various metal objects which set wheels in motion showing lemons, plums, oranges, etc, or perhaps lions, tigers, and mountain goats. Thru some hocus pocus, a metallic decision tells whether the person who contributed the coin gets something or nothing in return. Mostly, observers said, it is nothing. Occasionally 2, 4, 8, or maybe 16 coins come back as a lure.

Old Metal Boxes Seized.

The machines seized Friday night were the old metal boxes which take and seldom give. Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher today is to pass on a petition for a writ of replevin thru which Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien is asked to give them back to the Scully Warehouse and Express company, which admitted harboring them for Edward Vogel, who represents the Capone-Nitti syndicate.

Three of Vogel's employés are to face Police Magistrate Sandusky today in Cicero on charges of conspiracy. Attorney General John E. Cassidy has ruled that the old style slot machines incriminate all who have anything to do with them, except play them. He has also banned the new, his aids declare, but apparently word to that effect hasn't got around.

SACCO-VANZETTI CASE REVIEWER DIES IN BOSTON

Boston, Mass., May 19 (AP).—Judge Robert Grant, who in 1927 served on a commission appointed by the governor, Alvin T. Fuller, to review the celebrated Sacco-Vanzetti case, died today at the age of 89.

Famous as the author of many books dealing with marriage and divorce problems, Judge Grant found with President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university and President Samuel Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology that there was "no evidence" to warrant changing the imposition of the death penalty on the two foreign born radicals.

The two, Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, had been convicted of murdering a Braintree policeman. Their execution resulted in workers' demonstrations all over the world on the ground they were "railroaded" because of their political beliefs.

WHY FALSE TEETH WEARERS HAVE BAD BREATH

Millions Suffer Without Knowing!

You can't notice any odor from your plate or bridge—but others may! Dentists call this odor "denture breath" and it's serious. It comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. Ordinary brushing often can't get this scum off plate or bridge—can't protect you against "denture breath." But just try Polident! Polident not only cleans—it actually purifies plates and bridges without brushing. It gets every bit of scum, tarnish, stain and odor—dissolves it away and leaves your plate sweet and clean as new.

Your breath will be fresher, your mouth feel cleaner—and your plate last longer and look better. Polident is approved by dental authorities. Good Housekeeping and tens of thousands of delighted users. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store.

WATER SHORTAGE PERILS VALLEY IN WAKE OF QUAKE

California Death Toll 8; Damage $2,500,000.

BULLETIN.

Brawley, Cal., May 19 (Special).—Three men were arrested here tonight on charges of looting in the ruins of quake damaged homes and stores. State police have been rushed to the area. Gov. Culbert Olson announced he may send National Guard troops to enforce martial law if looting becomes widespread.

El Centro, Cal., May 19 (AP).—Imperial valley, rich agriculture area, was struck by an earthquake last night which took eight lives, injured scores of persons and did property damage estimated at $2,500,000.

Today the valley faced a new threat of water shortage. The Imperial Irrigation District canal, which runs from the Colorado river and brings the valley its only water, was reported to be pouring thru half a dozen great cracks below the border where it swings thru Mexico.

Don Davis, city engineer, said he did not believe the shortage would become acute for a week or more, but district officials could give no assurance the breaks would be repaired by then.

Trapped by Falling Walls.

Coroner R. W. Ware listed the dead as Mrs. Alma Ruth Mullings, 25 years old; her two daughters, Loy, 6, and Welora, 3, and Juanita Blevins, 18, all of Imperial; John Clifford Moore, 21, of Heber; Abel Portillo, 75, of Brawley, and Manuel Garcia, 25, and an unidentified Chinese in Mexicali, Lower California.

Mrs. Mullings and her children were trapped beneath the falling walls of a grocery as Ben Mullings, the husband and father, stood helpless beside their automobile. Miss Blevins died beside them.

Moore was killed in the collapse of a fire wall in front of the El Centro hotel. Portillo was a victim of falling bricks. The Chinese was smothered in a fire which destroyed the International hotel and a liquor store in Mexicali.

Many Buildings Demolished.

Brawley and Imperial appeared the worst damaged of the valley cities. At least half the buildings in Brawley's main business district of eight square blocks may have to be entirely reconstructed. The quake slipped numerous homes from their foundations and toppled almost every chimney.

Its chief main snapped in two, Brawley will be without gas for an indefinite period. Holtville, like Imperial, lost its water tank, a tower nearly 100 feet high and storing 100,000 gallons.

Davis expressed the opinion that El Centro, with close economy, can make its 20,000,000 gallon water reserve last more than a week. Other cities, except Holtville and Imperial, have a reserve. The valley's population is approximately 70,000.

What effect the water shortage will have on the $30,000,000 farm and garden crops will depend upon how soon the canal breaks could be repaired. Lettuce, canteloupes and watermelons will be chiefly affected.

Lieut. Harry I. Allen Jr., commander of the navy mine layer, Eagle 38, was killed yesterday in an accident in Seattle, Wash. His parents, Attorney and Mrs. Allen, 2206 Orrington avenue, Evanston, were notified of his death in a telegram which said Lieut. Summer Garb, Designed in, for Chicago, Clicks

BY REA SEEGER.

Outstanding new summer clothes designed for Chicago women by a designer permanently parked right in the midst of things are flattering costumes with extremely reasonable price marks. In this showing are gleaming all white outfits, the last word in smart eye appeal, distinctive detail and trim. Eyelet and solid embroidery make them dress parade without overdoing it. Afternoon dresses with simple flared skirts, have blouse tops with short sleeves and these tops boast the insertions of effective eyelet embroidery.

Smooth linens, also in chalk white and lovely pastels, are finds of unusual charm because they are simple enough to wear for daytime and yet sufficiently adorned with embroidery, buttons, and dressmaker details to make them summer party clothes of beauty. It's the deft way the lace and embroidery are appliqued, inset or banded that makes these Chicago-made clothes so different.

Shell pink is one of the fashion favorites, so is the burnt copper brown shade and there are enough blues and subtle grays to satisfy all shoppers! But the all-whites are the spotlight stealers!

In the same collection will be found some of the smartest summer suits and simple one piece daytime outfits ever presented. Chambrays and ginghams, both exceptionally smooth stuff for tubbable summer successes, are the materials.

There's a clever two piece chambray suit that comes in blue, green, pink, or cocoa color that's a knockout. It's a duet of snappy dress teamed with short jacket. The skirt of the dress is plaited in front stitched down for slimness, and you provide your own accessories in contrast.

A Quaker gray chambray one piece dress has huge smoke pearl, flat buttons down the front and a stunning black and white plaid tie belt cut on the bias. Big plaid checked ginghams in unusual color combination, precise pin checks and pencil stripes complete the assortment in both suits and dresses. It's a collection of knowingly designed clothes that should make the most phlegmatic citizen stand up and cheer for home talent.

Mrs. William O. Philbrook will play the part of "Julia" in Mrs. William A. Nitze's play, "What's Art to Me?", that will be given at a meeting of the University of Chicago Settlement league at 2:15 o'clock today in the theater of Ida Noyes hall at the university. Edmund Giesbert of the university's art department will speak on "Fundamentals in Art Appreciation." Mrs. Nitze's play is a satire on the Picasso show.

Front Views and Profiles
By June Provines

Mexico City.

Señor Ignacio Amor, member of one of the dispossessed sugar hacienda families, produced one of his calling cards to write down some instructions for us on our trip to Morelia, said to be the most authentically Spanish of the Mexican cities, and to the beautiful lake country of Patzcuaro.

"Don't waste another card," we cautioned, with a remembrance of using the last of our own cards for inconsequential notes.

Mason Wells, formerly of Chicago, who is in Mexico City for a few days and who has leased an enchanting house at Acapulco, where he is painting pictures, spoke up dreamily.

"I remember once when I ordered new calling cards in Bali from Cartier's," he said.

Mason Wells was the second familiar face we encountered that day. The other was the thin, dark, sensitive countenance of Carlos Merida, Mexican artist who has had several exhibitions at Katherine Kuh's gallery in Chicago. We saw him at the gallery of Inez Amor, the young woman who brought an exhibit of Mexican art to the Arts club two years ago. Miss Amor now is in New York in connection with the Mexican art show at the Museum of Modern Art, so we did not see her, but we did inspect the Riveras, the Oroscos, the Sequierros, and other paintings at her gallery.

Tonight we dined at the Corinta, a handsome little restaurant with a dance orchestra and Greek decorations, and talked Mexican politics with Mexican friends. Other restaurants you might like to know about should you come to Mexico are Henri's, which serves French food; Paolo's, of Italian inspiration; Manolo's, and Prendes'. We still have not found a restaurant that makes a specialty of Mexican foods among the ones recommended. The popular night club in Mexico City is El Patio, where a pretty girl named Manuela is the rage, the orchestra plays O, Johnny, and there is a jitterbug number. The favorite bottled water is Garcia Crespo; a large and interesting antique shop is La Grangia, where you will find quantities of Spanish and Victorian china, and glass, and bibelots, and some china that once belonged to Maximilian. Another art shop you will want to visit is Misrachi's, which handles the work of the well known Mexican artists. And, of course, Sanborn's must be mentioned—Sanborn's, where you can buy Mexican native arts, chocolate sodas, cosmetics, Aztec feather work, American dog biscuits, fine silver, and anything else you might think of in one of its numerous departments, and eat excellent food in its handsome courtyard.

Bid Chicagoans to Washington Debuts in June

BY JUDITH CASS.

THOSE Chicagoans who are invited to both the Dunn and the Stillwell debuts in Washington, D. C., could make one trip and attend both parties, for they are to be on June 7 and 8. Cards to Miss Cynthia Louisa Dunn's debut tea on the 7th were received last week; Miss Courtney Louise Stillwell's invitations came earlier. She and her mother, Mme. Espil, will receive at the Argentine embassy from 4:30 until 7 on Saturday, June 8. Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Miss Dunn, and Miss Pauline Curtis will be at home from 5 until 7 o'clock at 27 Observatory circle on Friday, June 7.

Miss Stillwell, a granddaughter of Mrs. Homer Stillwell of the Drake, and Miss Dunn, a niece of the A. Watson Armours and the Laurance H. Armours, both have visited here often and have many friends, as well as relatives, here. Miss Stillwell's maternal aunt, Mrs George F. McLaughlin of Lake Forest, is not going to be able to go to Washington for the debut, but she is hoping that her niece will come to Lake Forest for a visit later in the summer.

None of the Armours has made plans so far to be in Washington for Cynthia Dunn's debut, but at the last moment some of them may dash down for the affair. The Dunns are to be in Manchester, Mass., this summer, so it is doubtful if their daughter will come west to take part in any of the Lake Forest festivities for the buds during the summer.

Marie Merrill Hubbard Debut Party Sept. 14.

Mrs. John F. Jelke has reserved Sept. 14 for a dinner-dance for Marie Merrill Hubbard, debutante elder daughter of Mrs. Merrill Hubbard of Lake Forest. The party probably will be given at the Jelkes' farm in Wadsworth instead of in their Lake Forest home.

Mrs. Jelke will be having a bud of her own for whom to entertain the next year, for Mary Louanna will be presented to society during the season of 1941-'42. She has another year at the Grenwood school in Ruxton, Md. Before coming home this summer she will attend several house parties, so it will be about June 20 before she arrives in Lake Forest.

Mrs. Jelke is leaving Wednesday for Pottstown, Pa., to attend the mothers and sons' week-end at the Hill school, where John III. is a student.

Mrs. Charles H. Swift of 209 Lake Shore drive will be hostess for the Opera tea on Friday of this week. Alec Templeton will be an especial guest. At last week's meeting at Mrs. Robert J. Dunham's home at 1500 Lake Shore drive it was reported that during the last week boxes had been sold to the George T. Buckinghams [2], Davis D. Kier, Mrs. Sewell Avery, William Butterworth, Mrs. Maurice Rothschild [½], Robert Allerton [½], Robert F. Carr, Mrs. F. W. J. Mueller, and James S. Coston.

Mrs. Walter Dillingham to Be Visitor This Week.

Mrs. Walter Dillingham, whose home is in Honolulu but who is lingering on in the east with Mr. Dillingham until after the Republican national convention, is coming out to Chicago this week for a brief visit with old friends. Story of America Told in Modern Rhythm for Listeners to W-G-N Symphonic Hour

The stirring strains of the modern cantata, "Ballad for Americans," as interpreted by William Franklin, Chicago Negro baritone, and chorus, featured the fourth broadcast last night of The Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network.

A storm of applause swept the studio audience at the conclusion of this interpretation of the American spirit in modern rhythm and the idiom of the day. The deep, true voice of Franklin and the enunciation of both guest star and chorus allowed the audience to follow not only the music but each word of the story.

Written by John Latouche, young Virginia poet, and set to music by Earl Robinson, American composer and symphony orchestra conductor, the "Ballad for Americans" deals with history of the country. It traces America from the revolution, thru the building of the country to the civil war, and thru the machine age.

Starting with a reference to the three-cornered hat of revolutionary leaders, and the night ride of Paul Revere, the singer identifies himself as "everybody who's nobody—nobody who's everybody" and sounds a note of confidence and hope for the composite American. The rôle is an embodiment of the courage and tireless effort which characterizes American democracy.

Marion Claire, star of the symphonic hour which is broadcast from 9 to 10 p. m. Sunday nights, sang "O Thou Billowy Harvest Field" by Rachmaninoff; "Love, I Have Won You" by Ronald; two Viennese folk songs, and "Chere Nuit" by Bachelet.

John T. McCutcheon speaking to radio audience.

Some of the thunder was stolen from the musical side of the show by John T. McCutcheon, noted correspondent and cartoonist for THE TRIBUNE, who charmed the audience with his amusing talk on "Sounds and Smells."

He recalled the bell of the Chauncey school, which summoned him to his first school and which he "hated with helpless despair." Also recalling his boyhood were the "pounding hammer in measured crescendo," the "lazy flapping of curtains" in early spring.

Of smells, he said some "are odors, aromas, perfumes, and fragrance, others—confidentially—are not." He spoke of "the 'odorous church where the organ swells' and jasmine of yesterday is full of sentiment and Victorian oomph." When he first came to Chicago, Mr. McCutcheon told the audience, he "celebrated momentous events—such as a $2 raise—by buying a cake of odoriferous French soap—Lubin's heliotrope—from which you got a maximum of result."

Other features on the program, directed by William A. Bacher, included the Introduction to Act 3 [Lohengrin], and finale of the Beethoven "Fifth Symphony" by the orchestra directed by Henry Weber. Then Miss Claire and the octet joined the orchestra in Themes from Tschaikowsky.

Hollywood, Cal., May 19.—Despite all denials, the Dan Topping-Sonja Henie romance will flare into a wedding. Most startling upset of the Hollywood week was the easy victory scored by Edward Arnold over Don Ameche in "Lillian Russell." Talent, Brains Rout Artificial Movie Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

There really ought to be a decline in "bottled" blondness in view of the ado that is being made over brunettes today, with Hollywood putting its box office stamp on brunette charms.

The revival of the darker coloring lends the individual a more definite personality. We can remember back when the screen women were not only all of a blondness but all of a similar height and weight.

Not so today! Which means not only that the screen standard has grown up and spread out, but the whole feminine standard has undergone a change. You can be tall, short or medium; blonde, redhead or brunette; or any of the intervening tints and tones. You can go in for colors, or you can stay conservatively black of costume. None of this matters.

But what does matter is that you bring to your public [and each and every one of you has a public] a something that stands out as YOU and no one else. The more talent, the more brains, the more likely you are to register as a 1940 candidate for special attention.

So, our little message today is to adopt that single standard unto yourself. No more imitation! No more copying of style, mannerism, dress of a favorite screen star. You save something better to offer, directed from an inner consciousness that YOU, no carbon copy, must be better than YOU, an imitation.

Marry My Daughter

By Alice Duer Miller

(Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

SYNOPSIS.

Millicent Dunham's mother is killed saving Dick Shard from being hit by a truck, and on her deathbed she makes Dick promise to marry Millicent. Altho Dick is in love with Constance Stewart, whose husband, Aleck, is an invalid, he feels obligated to keep his promise. Dick lives in New York and is rich and distinguished and is head of the Shard firm for which both Mr. and Mrs. Dunham worked in the Kansas branch before their deaths. Millicent, who has been left penniless and untrained, knows she doesn't love Dick, but thinks he loves her, and upon the advice of Dr. Ogden, a family friend, marries him. On their way to New York after the wedding Dick tells her of his promise to Mrs. Dunham. Millicent is humiliated, but agrees to live with him for six months and then get a divorce. Dick tells her she will be free to do as she pleases during that time. Dick neglects his bride for Constance, who suggests that he hire a personal maid for Millicent to advise her on her clothes so that Dick will not be ashamed of her when he takes her out. Constance gives a party for the bride and groom and is astonished and furious when Millicent appears so exquisitely dressed and so beautiful that she takes the spotlight away from her hostess. In taking Dick's advice about leading her own life, Millicent makes friends of Michael Curley, whom she has met at the Metropolitan museum, and with Donald Eaves, a suave worldling whom Constance has introduced to her. Curley falls in love with Millicent and confesses his love for her to Dick and begs him to help protect his wife against Eaves. Millicent, knowing that Dick is in love with Constance, will not heed his advice about Eaves, but is forced to telephone him to come to her rescue one afternoon when she is locked in Eaves' bedroom and Dick is having tea in his own apartment with Constance. Dick goes to the rescue and Millicent realizes she loves him, but upon their return home Constance telephones Dick that Aleck is ill and needs him. While he is gone Dr. Ogden arrives for a visit and Millicent tells him of her unhappy marriage. He demands that she get a divorce. Dick returns and Dr. Ogden confronts him with their plan and both men agree that Millicent should have ample alimony, the she won't hear of it.

IMPERSONATION.

INSTALMENT XXV.

Dick spoke to her firmly: "That's absurd, Millicent. I could not bear to think of you working for your living. Legally—morally, every way you are entitled. . . ."

"I cannot take your money, and if you had any respect for me you would admit that I couldn't."

They looked at each other steadily. Dr. John interposed: "I think we can leave that point to the lawyers."

Dick nodded: "I'll send mine to you in the morning . . . William Lay. He's a great admirer of Millicent's. What is your hotel? The Windymere?" He scribbled it on a bit of paper, just as the telephone rang. Millicent's heart stood still—Donald. She saw Dick's face stiffen as he answered. He put his hand over the receiver as he said: "It's some one to speak to you—Eaves, I think, but he supposes that I am Simmons so you don't have to come if you don't want to."

"But I do want to." She picked up the receiver: "Yes, Donald, I did call you. No, no, I'm all right. . . . I wanted to explain—only I can't talk just now. Call me in the morning at the Windymere hotel. . . . Yes, I know. . . . I'll explain then. . . ." She hung up, with a faint feeling of triumph. Turning to Dr. Ogden, she said: "I won't be long, Dr. John."

Lucille had gone to bed long ago, but in any case Millicent would have preferred to pack her own bag. Everything she had had been given to her by Dick—or bought with his money—everything except the photographs of her parents that stood on her dressing table—her brushes and combs and toilet things—her underclothes—her dresses. . . . But among them all one essential was lacking—she had no picture of him. She wasn't going to live the rest of her life without that. And she knew where there was one—she had heard him tell Simmons once that there was an envelope full of them in the desk in his bedroom—when some of the western branches had wanted his picture for a convention program. She stole guiltily down the hall.

She had never been in his room before. It had a faint odor of tobacco and Russian leather and tweeds. His dark silk pajamas were folded on his bed—his shabby morocco slippers stood beside it. She saw a photograph on his dressing table—not of him, but of Constance—such a lovely young Constance, in a shirt with an open neck, sitting on a horse—no wonder he had loved her—she was beautiful and determined and she, Millicent, hated her as she had never supposed she could hate any one. She took it up and was still staring at it when she was startled by the ringing of a telephone at her elbow—Dick's private telephone. Instinctively she answered it and heard Constance's voice, "Hullo, Dick. . . . O, can I speak to Mr. Shard?"

She couldn't admit to Constance of all people that she had stolen into her husband's room. The idea came to her to pretend that she was the housemaid—just as Dick had pretended to be Simmons. She answered in a sweet high Irish voice:

"Is it Mr. Shard you want to speak to, madam?"

"Yes, is he in?"

"I think he's in Mrs. Shard's room, madame. I'll call him."

"No, don't trouble." The instrument clicked.

Millicent put it down—pushed it from her—in horror. What had she done? The basest action of her whole life. She couldn't believe it of herself—not Millicent Dunham—who was honorable and true—she had told a lie—and a very low sort of lie. She was ashamed—and terribly frightened. Her father had taught her that a lie must be confessed—especially a lie that could make trouble—and what could make more trouble than this one? She must confess to Dick—and what a moment for humiliation—she couldn't make the only excuse that would justify her—namely, that she loved him and had spent an evening of jealously and despair.

She had hardly reached her own room before she heard the voices of the men in the hall outside.

"Ready, Milly," the doctor was saying. "I've had a long day, you know."

She closed her bag and Shard came in silently and carried it out, but the doctor took it from him as if he were not worthy to touch the luggage of such an injured woman.

"About that call of Donald Eaves?"

"No. Something dreadful that I've just done. I was in your room a few minutes ago and your telephone rang. It was Constance."

"What did she say? Didn't she want to speak to me?"

"Yes. I pretended I was Bridget. . . ."

"And you've left her hanging on the wire?" He made a quick movement toward the door, but she stopped him.

"No, she cut off—she cut off on account of something I said."

There was a long pause. Dick said gently: "I hope you weren't rude to her, Millicent—tonight of all nights."

"No—not exactly rude." She stared at him trying to remember every line of his face, trying to drive herself to say the fatal words.

"What is all this, Millicent?"

"I said—I said that you were in my room."

To her surprise he began to laugh, and then seeing her obvious distress he stopped. "You never cease to astonish me, my dear," he said. "But don't worry about that. She won't believe you."

"She cut off as if she did."

He shook his head. "No. You see Constance had known the truth from the beginning. As soon as you go I shall call her up. . . ."

"And tell her that I am a liar?"

"And tell her that you thought it was funny to pretend to be Bridget. She'll understand. She's a very understanding person. "But," he added more seriously, "I'm not sure I do. Why did you say that?"

"Well, I suppose because I hate her."

"Hate her? Hate Constance, who has gone out of her way to be kind to you. Ah, well, I'm afraid that like most beautiful women she isn't very popular with members of her own sex."

This was really more than Millicent could bear—the last straw. "Don't dare to say that," she answered. "It isn't because she's beautiful that I hate her. I like beautiful things and beautiful people—if they're nice. I hate Constance on account of the way she treats you—she's selfish and hard and just uses you to make her own life easier. . . ."

"Millicent, you mustn't say that. . . ."

"I will say it . . . you might as well hear the truth from one person. Every friend you have wishes you had the courage and sense to free yourself from this slavery you live in. And she hasn't been kind to me . . . she has done everything to make me appear silly and ignorant. She's a cold, hard, ruthless woman, and I believe she's a lot older than she says she is. . . ."

The season for fresh, fat, sweet cherries is much too short for those of us who could eat a pound at one sitting. They're here today and gone soon, so let's use them now in salads and desserts, and put up a few jars of sweet cherry preserves to make us happier next fall and winter.

Sweet cherry preserves may be made with orange or lemon juice. They do seem to need the citrus tang to bring out their own milder, more delicate flavor. See how easy it is to make a delicious preserve by this recipe.

SWEET CHERRY PRESERVES.

½ cup lemon juice
3 cups sugar

Add water just to cover the cherries. Add lemon juice and bring to the boiling point. Add sugar and cook rapidly until preserves are clear and sirup is thick. Let cherries stand several hours in the sirup to "plump." Skim out fruit and place in clean jars. Bring sirup to a boil and pour over the cherries. If the sirup isn't as thick as you like it, boil it down to a heavier consistency.

Sweet cherries blend in flavor with melon to perfection. Cherry and melon fruit cups or salads look pretty, too.

SWEET CHERRY AND MELON FRUIT CUPS AND SALADS.

1. Combine pitted fresh cherries with cantaloupe, honeydew, or other melon balls and2 slices of banana. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and pour a little fruit juice or sweet wine over the combination for fruit cup. For salad, arrange on watercress and add a wine French dressing or honey French dressing.

2. Cut melon into thin, long slices and arrange to overlap on a bed of greens. Garnish with pitted sweet cherries stuffed with pecans or cream cheese, and serve with a fruit salad dressing.

3. Put pitted cherries and diced melon into orange gelatin with diced canned pear and a few fresh green grapes. Serve this salad with mayonnaise or whipped cream dressing.

4. Peel a ring of cantaloupe and fill it with whole sweet cherries, with the stems on, for an appetizer. Arrange the combination on a lettuce leaf. Stem and pit the cherries and add a French dressing [sweet] for a salad.

Sweet cherries may be baked in a pie just as you would bake sour cherries, but less sugar is needed, of course, and it's a good idea to add a tablespoon of lemon juice.

New Under-arm Cream Deodorant safely Stops Perspiration

1. Does not rot dresses, does not irritate skin.
3. Instantly stops perspiration for 1 to 3 days. Removes odor from perspiration.
4. A pure, white, greaseless, stainless vanishing cream.
5. Arrid has been awarded the Approval Seal of the American Institute of Laundering for being harmless to fabrics.

Freiheit Chorus Puts Vitality Into Concert

Two Jewish choral organizations provided the only downtown concerts yesterday afternoon. In Orchestra hall Eugene Malek conducted the combined Milwaukee and Chicago groups of the Freiheit Gezang Farein in their 26th annual concert, while the a cappella choir of the B'nai B'rith Youth organization was singing its first concert under Ruth Morris' direction in the Goodman theater.

The older chorus performed with such vitality and enjoyment as to offset criticism of its roughness, lack of precision, or occasional lapse from pitch. Its program was sung in Yiddish and consisted almost entirely of music by two composers, Jacob Schaefer and Max Helfman. The latter's choral ballad, "Benyomin the Third," took up the second half of the concert.

The singers knew their music well and were at home in the exotic and often oriental inflections of the Yiddish idiom. Some of it was genuinely haunting, but it could have been more so with less conventional treatment by the composers.

Within the space of a year Miss Morris has whipped her young singers into an efficient and responsive choir. The B'nai B'rith group has developed a fine grained tone, unity in attack, and good diction. These qualities it put to good use in a program largely made up of folk songs and Negro spirituals. On the whole, Miss Morris conducted well; here and there she was inclined to break up a piece unnecessarily into short, isolated phrases. R. E.

According to CULBERTSON

Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The following hand appeals to me as being unusually interesting. How many of the experts would set the contract when on lead at the fifth trick?

"With both sides vulnerable, North reached a contract of six diamonds by extremely vigorous bidding. East opened the heart king. Dummy's blank ace won, the spade ace was cashed, and declarer ruffed a low spade with the diamond four. The club ten then was led, and East and dummy played low. West won with the ace, and it was at this point that his return decided the fate of the contract. Actually, he led back a low spade. Declarer ruffed with the diamond ten, cashed the diamond king, overtook the diamond queen with dummy's ace, and led the spade jack thru West, who had to cover, being down to the blank queen. Declarer ruffed, then reëntered dummy with a club finesse against the queen, drew West's last trump with the diamond nine, and claimed the balance.

"You will notice that a club return by West would not have been any more effective. Dummy would win and a spade would be ruffed. Then the diamond king would be cashed and the queen overtaken. Now a spade lead thru West would bring about the same result.

"But notice what happens if West, on lead with the club ace, returns a heart! Declarer now is up the creek. Dummy ruffs, but in doing so loses an entry for the establishment and cashing of the spade suit, and the contract is down one.—G. S., Buffalo, N. Y."

The hand undoubtedly is interesting for the variety of plays offered declarer, depending on the defense selected. My correspondent errs, however, in his statement that the contract could have been defeated by a heart return when West took the lead with the club ace. On this return, declarer could use a straight cross-ruff to bring home 12 tricks, merely taking pains to cash his two club tricks on a finesse before East could get rid of sufficient clubs to matter. The play would go: Dummy ruffs the heart return with the six spot, and declarer ruffs a spade; now two rounds of clubs are cashed on a finesse, and after that a straight cross-ruff takes the balance.

The only defense by West that gives declarer any trouble is a hold-up of the club ace for one round and, on being forced to take it on the next lead, to return a trump. But even then the contract can be fulfilled if declarer guesses correctly. Declarer wins the trump return in his own hand, and overtakes the diamond queen. Now reduced to two trumps, while West still holds a trump, declarer plays the spade jack and West, of course, ducks. Declarer now must guess whether to ruff or pass this trick. If he guesses wrong, the slam contract is doomed.

Good Morning!

Well done, too. The acting is forceful, intelligent, and believable, and the direction shows acumen.

The production would warn unprotected prospective mothers to be wary in their selection of the institution where their baby is to be delivered. . . . Many safe havens there are, but others exist which, behind a façade of respectability, carry on a traffic in infants, and are managed by unprincipled persons who make a living off the unfortunate.

Into such a "home" comes Mrs. Ruth Williams, whose husband has been recently killed in an automobile accident. . . . Before her baby's arrival, every effort is used to persuade her it is to her best interests to sign away her rights to her prospective child. . . . Her indignant refusal is met with bland and deceptive acquiescence . . . and from here on you are shown what CAN—and often DOES—happen to a girl who falls into the hands of conscienceless physicians and their helpers. . . .

A determined and brainy young newspaper reporter, working with a "right" medical man, is the Sherlock Holmes and savior of the story. . . . Unusually convincing acting this young fellow—Glenn Ford—does, too.

Rochelle Hudson gives a clever and sympathetic portrayal of the heroine. Isabel Jewell is splendid as another inmate of "Mercy Shelter." Joseph Stefani plays the good doc ably. Miles Mander as the villain medico, and Georgia Caine, as matron of the home, are excellent. I think the other players also will meet with your approval and feel that you'll find "Babies for Sale" consistently interesting, and not too long.

See you tomorrow.

The Stage

Tallulah Bankhead will end her Chicago engagement in "The Little Foxes" at the Selwyn theater Saturday, June 1. Next door at the Harris, "The Man Who Came to Dinner" will close the same evening.

The next theatrical opening in the loop will take place on Sunday, July 7, when a new musical entitled "Keep Punchin'" arrives at the Grand Opera house. Al Jolson, returning to the stage after nine years, heads the cast, supported by Ruby Keeler, Martha Raye, Vera Gordon, and Lionel Stander. The book was written by Guy Bolton, Eddie Davis, and Matt Brook, and the music is by E. Y. Harburg and Burton Lane.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

We were so smitten with the divine fragrance of a pale pink liquid cream designed to be used as a powder base that we didn't know whether to eat it or use it. We took the cap off the bottle, sniffed it, and thought about it. Sniffed it a second time, thought about it, and decided that it was like the fresh fragrance of lilacs.

You can't tell how good a lotion is by looking at it, so we put it to the test. It's the thin kind that spreads easily over the skin, forming a moist film. While it is still damp, but mind you, not too damp, fluff on your face powder. Brush off the excess, and your skin is left with a velvety finish that is extremely flattering.

In addition to being a foundation, this lotion is a protective one, too, and helps guard the skin from the drying effects of the wind and sun. It's a grand preparation for dry skin, which is a problem in the summer as well as in the winter.

Sparing Child Important in Any Divorce

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A father writes:

"With the increasing number of divorces in which minor children are concerned, a problem presents itself in regard to the children. A broken home places an immediate handicap upon the child, and it appears that the courts attempt to satisfy both parents by some kind of compromise that divides the child or children as to their custody. The child is thereby tossed back and forth like a football.

"Believing that each day of a child's life is important toward preparing it for the future, I am wondering if, for the child's sake [the bill of rights of a child], it would not be better for that child to be under, and remain under, the same right influence. . . .

"Along this line I just wonder if you could suggest some book or authority that covers a discussion of this subject?"

At the moment I do not know of any book to recommend. There can be no blanket advice on this question. Children vary. Fathers and mothers vary. Finances vary. And certainly social settings vary, and have a great deal to do with the effect of any decision. While divorce and living with first one parent and then another always is sad enough, there are communities in which such conditions are conspicuous and hideously embarrassing, and other circles in which they are more frequent and more acceptable, at least on the surface.

As to the arrangement whereby a child lives permanently with one parent, it has one thing to recommend it, provided that influence is a good one. It provides stability.

If separation looms in your family the effect upon the children must be gravely considered and this particular problem dealt with in the practical as well as the serious vein.

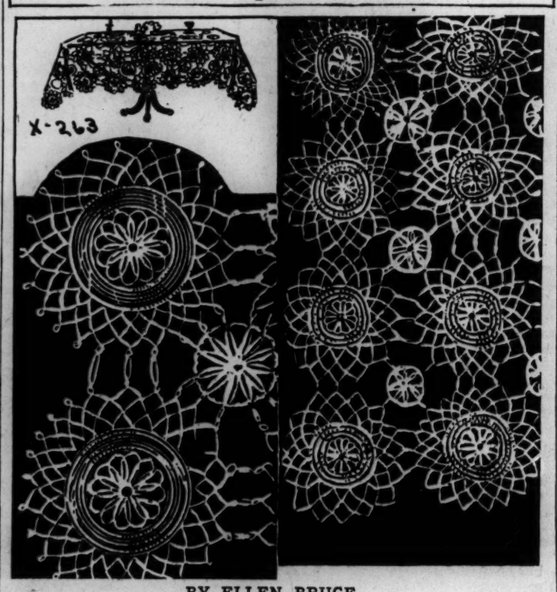
Crocheted Spoke Medallion



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

The simplest of crochet work often is that which is most effective. Medallions are a favorite form of this type of work because they may be made piece by piece and then joined to create a tablecloth of gossamer sheerness and unusual beauty. Number 20 mercerized crochet cotton in ecru, cream or white is used for the medallion, and each individual piece requires no longer than 20 minutes of your leisure time. This same design may be applied to a bedspread, using heavier crochet cotton.

For instructions in crocheting the spoke medallion, No. X-263, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

RUSSELL HITS HOMER WITH ONE ON TO BREAK TIE

Chicagoans Use 19 Players.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 19.—Those erstwhile Daffy Dodgers had just about completed arrangements this afternoon to take the Cubs for a ride when the Chicagoans voiced sudden as well as violent objections. With a ninth inning splurge that tied the score and removed their old mate, Tex Carleton, the tourists from the west flared up again in the tenth. Glen Russell boomed a homer into the seats after Billy Nicholson had walked, just enough of an edge to render void a Dodger threat in their final stand. The score was 7 to 6.

Augie Galan.

They Catch Up with Tex.

For seven innings the Cubs were just so many dead mackerels, and 27,032 fans were whooping it up. The Cubs had done practically nothing to Carleton and the Dodgers were riding high as the result of the most violent assault of the season on Larry [Lefty] French. They drove him from the scene with five runs in the third. But in the eighth, things began to change. Hank Leiber notched a homer for two runs, Carleton vanished in the ninth when the tying runs went across, and his successor, Tot Pressnell, was stung with the defeat by Russell.

With Stan Hack and Billy Herman on the injured list the Cubs started out with a patch quilt lineup, but finished with one that was nothing short of a nightmare. At the start the only unusual features were Billy Rogell at third and Outfielder Augie Galan at second. But in the last two innings Manager Gabby Hartnett, whose long pinch hitting fly tied the count in the ninth, was playing first, Russell had moved from first to third, and Rogell from third to short. Altogether 19 Cubs were in the mêlée, Bill Lee, Charley Root, and Diz Dean being the only eligibles not summoned.

Cubs Use Six Pitchers.

Six of the Chicagoans who saw at least a portion of the action were pitchers. When French was shelled in the third, Ken Raffensberger cleaned up and remained until the end of the sixth. Vance Page came next and weathered two innings despite woeful support. Jake Mooty took over in the ninth and encountered grief in the 10th. But he had to leave with the tying run on second base and one out. Vern [Lefty] Olsen lingered only long enough to pitch to one batter, who walked. Then Manager Hartnett called in one of his aces, Claude Passeau, and the Dodg-

Like true friends who greet us

The gold in our pocket
Fair fellows will win,
But not pals who stick to us

But not a home where always
Reigns perfect peace.

Davis Escapes Injury in Trial Run.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., May 19.—William [Shorty] Cantlon of Detroit drove 10 miles at an average of 123.367 miles an hour today on the speedway to become No. 12 in the lineup of 33 cars for the 28th annual 500 mile automobile race here on Memorial day. He was the only driver to be timed today in the four lap qualifying test around the two and a half mile brick track.

Trials will be resumed Wednesday, from 1 to 5 o'clock. May 28 is the deadline for qualifying for the $100,000 race.

Swanson Tunes up Giant.

Floyd Davis of Springfield, Ill., in a practice drive, gave a Sunday crowd of 30,000 spectators a thrill in the otherwise dull day by doing two complete spins on the northwest turn. He said that he had been caught by a gust of wind. His machine, driven by Bob Swanson of California, skidded in the 1939 Memorial day event, resulting in the three car crash which killed Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, Cal., the 1938 champion.

Swanson, this year's west coast midget champion, did an unofficial 120 m. p. h. today tuning up a 16 cylinder car. The engine block in Swanson's car is the one which carried Frank Lockhart to his death at Daytona Beach, Fla., in 1928.

George Connor, San Bernardino, Cal., did two laps on a qualification attempt and then pulled into the pits when his engine began to slacken.

Mays Leads Qualifiers.

Eleven qualified yesterday on the first day of trials. Among them is Rex Mays of Glendale, Cal., who captured the pole position, and Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, Ind., the 1937 and 1939 winner, who took No. 2 position.

Warm sunshine broke thru windblown clouds shortly after noon and a crowd of 30,000 streamed into the 433 acre speedway inclosure, where 135,000 are expected a week from Thursday. In addition to qualification time tests, the spectators came to witness practice drives around the two and a half mile track. Such preliminaries have accounted for 18 of the 35 fatalities at this track, including one 1940 victim, George Bailey of Detroit on May 14.

New York, May 19 [Special].—Atlante, soccer champion of Mexico, defeated the New York Americans, 1 to 0, before 7,500 fans this afternoon. The Mexican invaders, holder of the Pan-American football cup, thus opened a 12-game coast-to-coast tour of the United States. Fernando Garcia stood out with all-around defensive play and perfect passing up to his front line. The goal came a minute from the end when Eduardo Romero tore thru after taking Albert Mendoza's pass and his smashing shot beat Goalie Stanley Chesney.

Atlante, after visiting New England, will play its second game of the tour against a selected American soccer league team here next Sunday before moving into the west for matches in Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee, San Francisco, and Los Angeles.

PURDUE MEETS INDIANA STATE, DEPAUW IN TENNIS

Lafayette, Ind., May 19 [Special].—As a final tuneup for the Indiana state tourney which will open here Thursday morning, Purdue's tennis squad will wind up its dual meet season against DePauw and Indiana State here tomorrow and Tuesday, respectively.

Coach Larry Labree intends to use virtually the same combination that broke even in two conference engagements over the week-end, winning from Indiana and losing to Ohio State.

WILDCATS OPEN DEFENSE OF GOLF HONORS TODAY

Columbus, O., May 19 (AP).—Minus most of its stars, Northwestern university, last year's Big 9½ golf champion, will attempt to retain its title tomorrow on Ohio State university's fairways. Only one Wildcat veteran, Capt. Chet Bland, will participate in the 72 hole tournament. Chase Fannon, the conference individual champion last year, will watch from the sidelines because of ineligibility.

Supporting Bland on the Northwestern team will be Dick Haskell of Seattle, Wash., and Bill Kelley of Evanston, Ill. Bill O'Neill, letter man from two years ago, also is a probable competitor.

Despite the absence of veterans, Northwestern is considered a likely winner. Michigan is also conceded a chance, while Ohio State takes on the rôle of dark horse since the team is playing on its home course.

SENATORS JOLT LYONS, DIETRICH IN 12-10 GAME

Washington Hits 3 Home Runs.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Nine days ago the White Sox beat the Detroit Tigers, 1 to 0, on a bunt and another single. Yesterday they took a licking from the Washington Senators, tho they made 10 runs and 15 hits, including homers by Mike Tresh, Eric McNair, and Joe Kuhel. The score was Washington, 12; Chicago, 10. And so, friends, that's the way it goes.

The Sox lost their ninth try for their first 1940 home victory, and with all their slugging against Dutch Leonard, they richly deserved to lose, not only because the Senators made nine hits off Ted Lyons in three innings and 10 off Bill Dietrich in five innings, but because they otherwise played ineptly. There were grievous errors by usually dependable gents.

The 19 hits made by the Senators included a home run by Johnny Welaj, off Lyons, and one each by George Case and Jim Bloodworth off Dietrich. Bloodworth made four hits including, besides his homer, a double and two singles. Zeke Bonura made three singles and a double his first four times up, and walked his fifth trip. So it scarcely can be claimed the Sox should have won, especially when you consider that two of the Senators' runs scored on wild pitches.

See America First!

The Sox did not, however, have a corner on unskilled performance. For instance, two Sox got on base after they had been struck out by Leonard, a most unusual breakdown of catching support. Each side made three errors, and it took a few seconds under two hours and a half to wade thru the horrible exhibition of baseball.

The Sox are affiliated with St. Paul, Waterloo, Jonesboro, Lubbock, St. Joe, and Wisconsin Rapids teams, but it is probable that Manager Jimmy Dykes is a little stubborn and will keep on trying to win a home game with his present outfit, if it takes all summer.

The day's scoring started after Case had fanned and John Lewis had grounded out in the first inning. Welaj then put his homer into the left field stand. Gee Walker was out, Kuhel to Lyons. A walk to Kuhel and a single by Mike Kreevich gave the Sox a chance to tie the score in their half, but Taft Wright hit into a double play to end the threat.

Tit for Tat Stuff.

The Sox were guilty of their sloppiest inning in several annums in the second. Bonura opened with a single and went to third on a single by Cecil Travis, then things became screwy. Bonura scored on a wild pitch, but Travis, trying to go from first to third on the same heave, was out, Tresh to Bob Kennedy. Kreevich failed to hold Bloodworth's drive into the gale and it fell for a double. Rick Ferrell sent a slow bouncer to McNair, but Kuhel dropped the toss, so Bloodworth was safe at third and Ferrell was safe at first. Leonard tapped to Kuhel, who threw the ball to the stands in an attempt to get Bloodworth at the plate. Bloodworth scored, Ferrell reaching third and Leonard second on this second error of the usually faultless Kuhel. Lyons cut loose another wild pitch, Ferrell scoring and Leonard taking third. Case fouled to Tresh and then the first run batted in of the inning was recorded. Lewis singled to send home Leonard. Welaj popped to Kuhel.

Then it became the Sox's turn to

COLUMBUS PARK PICKED FOR GOLF SCHOOL FINALS

Third Lessons Will Be Given Tomorrow.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Columbus park, long a favorite playground for west side golfers, will be the scene of the finals of the eighth annual free golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE on Sunday afternoon. It will be the first time the graduating exercises of the largest plan of group instruction in the game have been held on the west side since the courses of the Chicago park district became classrooms for the school.

Time was when it was not Columbus park. Prior to 1916, when it was named as such by the commissioners of the old West Chicago park district, the area was known as Warren Woods. Before 1915, a temporary nine hole golf course was laid out in the west end of the section. The literature of those years concerning the golf course mentioned that "the ground for golf is carefully raked and that a steam roller is employed to smooth out small irregularities." The dirt remaining from lagoon excavations in the east end of the park in 1916 was used in completing the course in that year.

32 Will Reach Finals.

Competing in these eighth finals will be the 32 prize students of the four regular lessons, the third of which will be held on the four park district courses tomorrow night, and the fourth and last on Thursday night. Following the completion of Thursday's instructions, the Illinois P. G. A. members who form the school's faculty will name the two men, two women, two boys, and two girls who have shown the most progress during the classes. This will give each of the four courses a representation of eight pupils.

A special jury will name the man, woman, boy, and girl adjudged to have the best swings during the final tests next Sunday afternoon in Columbus park. These four will receive from THE TRIBUNE a golf bag and a set of clubs and from the Chicago District Golf association a season ticket to the third annual Chicago open tournament, to be held July 19, 20, and 21 at Tam O' Shanter.

Others Will Be Rewarded.

The other 28 finalists will not go unrewarded. Each will receive one dozen golf balls and an admission ticket for the final 36 holes of the Chicago open on July 21.

If you missed the first two lessons of the school last week, do not feel that you are barred from participating in tomorrow's and Thursday's lessons. The members of the Illinois P. G. A., who annually have donated their services as teachers in the school, will review the subjects of those first two lessons—the grip and the stance—for the benefit of latecomers who may have been unable to attend last week or were deterred by the weather.

Speaking of the weather, it reached a new low during last week's two sessions, cold and rainy weather enduring from Tuesday afternoon thru Thursday night. Yet, such was the enthusiasm of the teachers and their pupils, that more than 22,500 men, women, and children from the Chicago district received the free instructions. Of this number, 8,500 appeared on Tuesday night, in spite of a last minute postponement, and the remainder turned out Thursday night, when the two lessons were combined.

No Charge for Lessons.

There is no charge for any of the lessons. If you are interested in learning the fundamentals of golf from men who have made a career of the game, bring a golf club to the course most convenient to you tomorrow and Thursday nights. Each of the lessons will begin promptly at 7 p. m. The faculty will stress tips on the swing this week, after reviewing the first principles of the grip and the stance.

The four park courses are Jackson park, 63d and Stony Island avenue; Columbus park, Jackson boulevard and Central avenue; Marquette park, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue, and Diversey, in Lincoln park at Diversey boulevard and Lake Michigan.

American Wheelmen Will Celebrate 60th Anniversary

The League of American Wheelmen will celebrate its 60th anniversary May 31 in the Sherman hotel. More than 200 cyclists from several states are expected to attend. Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, will be the guest of honor.

Hogan Repels Snead to Win Goodall Golf

New York, May 19 (AP).—They threatened Ben Hogan late today and Ben replied like a true champion to win the Goodall round-robin golf tournament with a final round of 69 over Fresh Meadow course.

After having led the parade of crack professionals for five rounds of match play, the Texan found Sam Snead closing in. His lead was menaced. Hogan then turned in a final nine of 33 to take first prize of $1,000.

The finish was far closer than any one had anticipated. Hogan began the final day with an apparently unbeatable total of 24 plus points against 8 owned by Gene Sarazen, in second place.

Snead Cuts Lead.

After the morning round, where Hogan soared to 73, he had a score of only 19 points against Snead's 11. A crowd of more than 4,000 trampled the course in the afternoon, watching for Hogan to crack and for Snead to catch him. For a time it seemed the leader might be overtaken, but when they hit the stretch Hogan proved his class.

Hogan, dark and thin, shot seven rounds of match play in 491 strokes, one over par for the exacting Fresh Meadow layout. He was two strokes under Harry Cooper's winning total of a year ago.

Hogan's final plus score was 23, meaning he won that many more holes than he lost in the seven rounds. He won 10 matches while losing 4.

Snead Takes Second.

Snead's 71—69 on the last day gave him second prize of $750. He finished with a plus score of 19, picking up 12 points in his last two rounds. He waxed fat in the afternoon at the expense of Jimmy Thomson and Clayton Heafner. Gene Sarazen won third money, $550, with 7 points above the board. Dick Metz turned in 68—69 today to finish with 5 points and win fourth money, $450.

Paul Runyan was fifth with 4 points, while Byron Nelson had 2 and Henry Picard and Martin Pose of Argentina finished all even after seven tough match rounds. The minus finishers were Heafner, 1; Jimmy Thomson, 4; Lawson Little, 7; Horton Smith, 8; Jimmy Demaret, 11; Jimmy Hines, 12, and Craig Wood, 17.

Hogan's victory gave him a total winnings of $7,538 for the year, second only to Jimmy Demaret, who has pocketed $7,777. Byron Nelson is in third place with $4,813.

Allen Battles Colonello in Marigold Ring

Altus Allen, former International Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, not only will be searching for his ninth professional victory tonight in Marigold Gardens against Italo Colonello of Italy, but will be attempting to qualify for a headliner against Johnny Paycheck in the Colesium June 5. Allen and Colonello are matched for 10 rounds.

Allen, who was 19 years old last Sept. 2, will be making his first appearance since April 15 when he conquered Willie Muldune of Cleveland. Altus weighed 178½ pounds on that occasion, 20 less than Colonello is expected to carry. The former Golden Glover will be after his sixth straight. He has engaged in 11 fights since turning pro, scoring one draw decision, losing two, and winning the others.

Carl Vinciquerra, 1936 Chicago Golden Gloves light heavyweight champion, who has not boxed since knocking out Jarl Johnson on March 8, will return to action in a five round semi-final against Tommy Johnson. Four round contests will bring together George Feltes, Milwaukee welterweight, and Johnny O'Hara; Joey Spiegel, junior welterweight, also of Milwaukee, and Tito Taylor, and Jimmy Santora, Chicago lightweight, and Jimmy Cagney.

Phil Malloy, south side heavyweight wrestler, will meet Juan Humberto in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, this evening. . . . Carl Owens, South Chicago light heavyweight fighter, and Conrad Baranski of Milwaukee, have been signed to meet in one of 10 matches of four rounds in White City Friday. . . . Johnny Paycheck will start boxing sessions in Trafton's gymnasium this afternoon for a 10 round engagement in the Coliseum next month. A secondary feature of 10 rounds involves Yucatan Kid, lightweight from Mexico, and Nick Castiglione of the Italo-American Youth organization. The survivor will be in line for a contest against George Morella, recent conqueror of Willie Joyce, in White City outdoor arena June 13. Morella will make his next start on the card headed by Billy Conn, light heavyweight title holder, and Gus Lesnevich in Detroit June 5. Holman Williams, Chicago welterweight, will face Johnny Durso of Louisville in an additional match.

Mickey Beal, Chicago featherweight, who retired from the ring after failing heir to some money two years ago, is training for a comeback. . . . Ben Brown, who was knocked out by Tony Zale in Chicago Stadium March 29, has accepted a 10 round "nontitle" match against Ken Overlin in Richmond, Va., June 27. The nontitle stipulation was included in the contract to protect Overlin in case he dethrones Ceferino Garcia as New York middleweight champion in Madison Square Garden Thursday.

THREE CHAMPIONS BOX

New York, May 19 (AP).—Three title bouts feature this week's national boxing program. Henry Armstrong defends his welterweight championship for the second time in a month in Boston when he faces Ralph Zanelli of Providence, R. I., in a 15 round bout Friday night.

Ceferino Garcia, New York and California recognized middleweight champion from Los Angeles, takes on Ken Overlin of Decatur, Ill., in Madison Square Garden at 15 rounds Thursday.

Joey Archibald of Pawtucket, R. I., and Harry Jeffra from Baltimore fight for the New York and Maryland version of featherweight title in a 15 round bout at Baltimore, Md., tomorrow night.

MICHIGAN TRACK HOPES TAKE A DOWNWARD TURN

Schwarzkopf May Not Run in Big 9½ Meet.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Ever since the University of Michigan ran away with the Western conference indoor track championship for the seventh year, it has been generally conceded that the Wolverines' balanced strength would bring them their fourth consecutive outdoor championship in the games this week-end in Northwestern's Dyche stadium.

Indiana was Michigan's closest competitor last March in the University of Chicago fieldhouse in the abbreviated program of events, but in the 1939 outdoor meet Michigan scored 64¾ points to Wisconsin's 45 5-12 points. Indiana was third with 28⅝ points.

That Michigan has lost Bill Watson, who a year ago won the discus, shot put, and broad jump, has already been discounted. Now, however, Capt. Ralph Schwarzkopf is termed a "most doubtful starter" for Michigan which leaves Indiana, led by its twin stars Campbell Kane and Roy Cochran, within striking distance of the championship altho it still must be conceded that the Hoosiers do not have balanced strength.

But They May Win, Anyway.

Schwarzkopf is defending champion and indoor record holder in the two miles. He also could score points in the one mile race [which probably will be won by Kane] if Michigan needed this aid. Even so, Michigan has a fine chance of equaling its own record of four straight outdoor track titles which the Wolverines established from 1901 to 1904.

Schwarzkopf and Watson won four of Michigan's seven individual titles last year and one of the remaining three was credited to the record breaking mile relay quartet of which three members still are eligible. Elmer Gedeon, high hurdle winner, has been graduated, and Warren Breidenbach, quarter mile champion, may lose his title to Cochran who set an American record indoors to win the conference 440. Breidenbach was second indoors.

Michigan's titles indoors were won by the mile relay team, by Schwarzkopf, and Don Canham, Oak Park, Ill., sophomore, who tied for first place in the high jump with Jim Smith of Northwestern.

Coach Rejoins Squad.

Ken Doherty, who is head coach of the Michigan varsity after serving nine years as assistant to Charles Hoyt, who resigned a year ago to go to Yale, recently rejoined his squad after a three weeks' illness.

Preliminaries in 10 events will be held Friday afternoon in Dyche stadium beginning at 3 o'clock. Trials in the high hurdles will lead off the track schedule. Preliminaries in four field events, shot put, discus, broad jump, and javelin throw, are on Friday's program.

The first of the 15 championships, the mile run, starts Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Reserved seats are $1.10.

The annual spring meeting of the conference directors of athletics, faculty committee, and football coaches will be held Friday and Saturday in the North Shore hotel, Evanston. The directors and football coaches will meet at 10 o'clock Friday morning to consider football schedules. The directors and faculty representatives meet Friday evening at dinner and they then complete their work separately on Saturday morning.

BUCKY WALTERS YIELDS FIVE HITS TO WIN 6TH, 8 TO 4

Lombardi Clinches Game with 3 Run Homer.

Boston, Mass., May 19 (AP).—Bucky Walters of the Cincinnati Reds made the Boston Bees his sixth straight victim today with an 8 to 4 triumph in which he limited his rivals to five hits. Bucky, who retired seven on strikes, was never in serious trouble and his mates supported him faultlessly.

Walters coasted thru the first four innings, but in the fifth Max West doubled to center field. Chet Ross scored him with a home run over the left field fence, his second on successive days. Bucky stemmed the tide then, and Catcher Ernie Lombardi put the game on ice with a three run homer in the eighth. Score:

Oak Park vs. New Trier.
Highland Park at Waukegan.

Having managed to play only 11 of 30 scheduled games the last five days, city high school baseball league teams face a full card of 15 contests this afternoon. Leaders do not meet today, but the races in all four divisions are so close that a victory or defeat can change the scenery very much.

Lindblom, undefeated in eight games, is leading the central section just a step ahead of Farragut, which has won seven and lost one. Lindblom battles Tilden, and Farragut takes on Harrison, the latter in third place with four won and one lost.

Lane Tech Meets Senn.

The only other undefeated outfit of the 31 involved, Lane Tech, will seek its ninth victory against its traditional rival, Senn, which is in third position with six won and two lost. Amundsen, next to Lane with eight and two, meets Von Steuben.

Calumet, Hirsch, and Fenger are mixing it up on the south front and the leaders run into the last place Parker nine with a record of seven out of eight to its credit. Parker's is just the reverse.

Suburban Teams Play.

Steinmetz, setting the pace in the west and the only team that has managed to keep up with the schedule, draws Kelvyn Park. Steinmetz has won nine and lost one.

Two games are listed in the Suburban league, calling for Oak Park at New Trier and Highland Park at Waukegan.

Sox Give Rigney Another Chance to Win No. 2 Today

John Rigney, reputed ace of the White Sox pitching staff, who has lost five and won one, will start against the Washington Senators in Comiskey park today. Sid Hudson, right hander, who stands 6 feet 4, has been nominated by Manager Bucky Harris.

Zeke Bonura, former White Sox, was busy before yesterday's game waving to Bonura fans. Gee Walker's movements weren't observed by this department, but it was assumed he was out casing the gate, just from force of habit. Gee, who went to Washington in a trade for Taft Wright, got a nice hand when he stepped to the plate the first time.

Wolves, rare animals in Comiskey park, barked loudly when the Sox fell apart in the first half of the second inning. The same wolves were purring when the home boys cut loose for four runs in their half of the second.

Lee to Face Dodgers for Cubs Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 19.—Bill Lee, whose season's record with the Cubs is three victories against four defeats, will draw Hugh Casey for an opponent in the second of the series with Brooklyn tomorrow.

Second Baseman Bill Herman, who joined the ailing squad yesterday when he sprained his right ankle by accidentally stepping on the edge of a base, wasn't in uniform. The ankle is still considerably swollen and the optimists who thought he would be back in about three days now are guessing it will be twice that long.

Stan Hack, the other injured member of the Cub infield, didn't receive his scheduled discharge today from Polyclinic hospital where he was taken last Friday after being beaned by a batted ball. His physician simply figured Stan can rest better in a hospital than a hotel.

With the possibility that two of his infielders will be on the side lines for a week, Manager Gabby Hartnett is thinking of asking the club to furnish an extra man against another emergency. The Cubs can recall Bob Sturgeon from Jersey City, but he's a shortstop, and Gabby needs a third or second baseman.

Clay Bryant, who was told yesterday by a Baltimore specialist that there is nothing wrong with his pitching arm, will have to go to work right soon. He may be ordered to start conditioning tomorrow by doing a pitching turn in batting practice. Hartnett has no program for his other mound cripple, Diz Dean.

GIANTS DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER WITH CLEVELAND

Playing on a rain soaked diamond, the Chicago American Giants and the Cleveland Bears split a Negro American league double header yesterday, Cleveland winning the opener behind Henry's steady pitching, 9 to 5, and the Chicagoans taking the second game, 6 to 4. The teams conclude their four game series with a ladies' day contest this afternoon in the American Giants park.

The Mills-Detroit Giants and the Spencer Coals-Colored All-Stars semi-pro baseball double headers were postponed yesterday because of wet grounds.

Senators Jolt Lyons, Dietrich to Defeat Sox

have some fun. Luke Appling singled to center and stopped at third on Julius Solters' wind-blown double. McNair's grounder bounced over Lewis' head for a double. Solters, however, suffered a recurrence of his charley-horse and had to pull up at third, where Larry Rosenthal replaced him. Tresh then crashed one into the left field stand, scoring Rosenthal and McNair. Lyons walked and was forced by Kennedy. Kuhel popped to Bloodworth and Kreevich fouled to Ferrell.

Sox Miss a Chance.

The Senators came back for two legitimate runs in the third, produced on successive singles by Bonura, Travis, Bloodworth, and Ferrell. Three Sox struck out in the home third and one of them scored. After Wright had fanned, Appling executed the first of his whiffs, but reached first when the ball got away from Ferrell. Appling went to third on Rosenthal's single. McNair fouled to Lewis, but Tresh singled to right, scoring Appling. Ken Silvestri batted for Lyons and fanned.

The Sox wilted after a good start in the fourth. Kennedy opened with a single to left and Kuhel walked. The pair moved up on Kreevich's sacrifice. Then Wright lined to Bonura and Appling executed his sixth strike out in the four games of the current home stand.

Eighth Is Discouraging.

Dietrich had luck in the fourth and fifth innings and had two out in the sixth before he allowed production. Walker dumped a single just out of Appling's reach in short left, then Bonura came thru with his fourth consecutive hit, a double, scoring Walker. There followed successive singles by Travis, Bloodworth, Ferrell, and Leonard before Case sent Rosenthal to the wall to end the inning with three runs home and the bases loaded.

The Sox uprising in the ninth was terrific tho inadequate. Appling singled to right. Rosenthal flied to Case, but McNair knocked a homer, scoring Appling. Tresh then doubled to right. Tom Turner, batting for Ed Weiland, the rookie right-hander from Evanston who pitched the ninth, was thrown out by Lewis. Kennedy singled to right, scoring Tresh. Kuhel knocked his No. 7 homer into the right field stands, scoring Kennedy. Kreevich popped to Bonura for the third out.

HYDROX, PARICHY GIRLS WIN IN LEAGUE GAMES

The Hydrox and Parichy Bloomer Girls were victors in Major league softball games last night, the Hydrox team outlasting the Mills to win a 20 to 10 slugfest on the losers' field and the Bloomer Girls defeating the Rockola's, 6 to 5, in a 12 inning contest at Parichy field.

Pearl [Gabby] Gasik, Hydrox catcher, hit a single, double, and home run and drove in five runs to make things easier for Pitcher Marge Startz. Juanita Laberdee and Helen Brugger were the Mills' hurlers.

Clara Holder's single scoring Pee Wee Charvat from third base gave Pitcher Laura Bishop and the Parichy's their first league victory.

Rockola vs. Hydrox, Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets.

RAIN CANCELS 15 GAMES IN STATE AMATEUR LEAGUE

The weather man was the victor in 15 of the 18 games scheduled in the Illinois State Amateur Baseball league yesterday. Bill Schwarz, pitching for the Mays A. C., in a southwest division game at 31st street and Keeler avenue, limited the Bayeux team to two hits and struck out 11 as Mays won, 9 to 1. Another game in the same division was won by the Dan Dukes from the Indians, 9 to 3, at 32d street and St. Louis avenue.

The Assumptions defeated the Kays Sport Shop, 18 to 3, in Douglas park, in a north central bracket game.

Oak Park Wins First Division Soccer Title

The Oak Park Acorns won the International league A division championship yesterday by defeating the Kolpings, 4 to 0. The Acorns will now meet the Slovaks, winners of the B division title, in a two game series to decide the championship.

The Acorns scored their four goals in the first 26 minutes of play, Willie Henson, Jack Anderson, and Bert Temple, with two, accounting for the goals. It was the seventh shutout in eight games for Frank Randak, Oak Park goalkeeper. He has allowed only one goal in that time.

The Spartas, tied with Baltimore, Md., for the national championship, defeated the Swedish Americans, 4 to 2, yesterday in Sparta stadium. The Spartas played without Jimmy MacDermott and Enid Pearson. Sparta officials expect to be notified this week whether they will play another game with Baltimore to decide the national championship, or whether Baltimore will be disqualified for leaving the field last Sunday when the score was tied, 2 to 2, at the end of 30 minutes of overtime.

Cubs Defeat Dodgers, 7-6, in 10th Inning

ers subsided. Mooty was credited with the victory.

Galan was the only Chicago trouper able to frisk Carleton for a hit in the first two innings. He doubled off the nearby right field wall with one out in the opening round, but all he got for his effort was the doubtful honor of being the 200th Cub left on the bases this season. Jim Gleeson and Leiber made this possible by striking out. The next Cub hit was French's double off the same wall with one out in the third. With two out, he scored on Galan's triple, but the one run lead was short lived.

Both Pee-Wee Reese and Gus Mancuso singled to center on French's first pitches in the home third. Carleton horned into the hitting party by singling to right, Reese scoring. Ernie Koy looped a single over second, Mancuso counting and Carleton going to third. The Cubs had a breathing spell while Pete Coscarart was popping to Bobby Mattick, but Cookie Lavagetto dropped a single in short left and before the Cubs got themselves straightened out Carleton had scored, Koy had gone to third and Lavagetto to second.

French Loses Control.

By this time French was plainly in a panic along with his mates. He couldn't get the ball over for Dolph Camilli and a pass loaded the bags. French abdicated in favor of Raffensberger, whose luck proved no better for the moment. Roy Cullenbine bounced a slow roller down the third base line and Rogell threw to the plate. The throw was too late, also wild, and Al Todd had to chase the ball to the grandstand. When quiet was restored Lavagetto had followed Koy across the plate. Dixie Walker then popped out, Reese was purposely passed, and Mancuso took a third strike.

After their one run flurry in the third, the Cubs found the travel against Carleton sort of tough. They picked up a single in the fourth, one in the sixth and another in the seventh. All were harmless, of course. The eighth proved a little more productive, thanks to Leiber. Galan singled for his third hit and after Gleeson had made the second out, Leiber was intrigued by a 3 and 2 pitch. He slapped it against the left field balcony for two runs.

The Cubs Tie It Up.

The fuss by which the Cubs tied it in the ninth broke out on singles by Russell and Todd. Dallessandro batted for Mattick and also singled to score Russell and send Clay Bryant, running for Todd, to third. Carleton turned his job over to Pressnell. Hartnett grabbed a bat, swung it for Page, and sent a fly to Koy to score Bryant with the tying run. Rogell flied out and a fly by Galan fell in short left for a double, Dallessandro stopping at third where Coscarart was spiked trying for a diving tag. The rally expired on Gleeson's gentle poke to Pressnell.

After Russell's homer had given the Cubs a two run edge, the Dodgers bounced back in their half of the tenth. Cullenbine led off with a single off Mooty and with one out scored on a double by Pinch Batter Babe Phelps. Olsen came to the rescue, but he walked Mancuso and was yanked, so Passeau was summoned. A force play and a strikeout quickly closed the daffy matinee.

Winnetka, Hyde Park Gain Second Cricket Victories

Winnetka and Hyde Park scored their second consecutive victories in the Illinois Cricket league yesterday and the Chicago Cricket club, defending champion, gained its first triumph after losing its opener to Lake Forest. The Chicago club whipped Lake Shore, 111 to 30, Winnetka defeated Washington Park, 74 to 29, and Hyde Park won from River Forest, 60 to 35. The Lake Forest-South Park and Milwaukee-Oak Park games were postponed.

FELLER, INDIANS PUT END TO YANK WINNING STREAK

Bob Yields Four Hits in Halting Champions, 5-1.

Cleveland, O., May 19 (AP).—Bob Feller had control today, pitching four hit ball, striking out six and walking only one, as Cleveland defeated the New York Yankees, 5 to 1, in the first of a three game series before 27,690. The Indians' attack was led by Ray Mack and Roy Weatherly, the latter getting three hits in three official times at bat, including a triple and a double. Mack's two hits were for extra bases.

Feller yielded no hits until Bill Knickerbocker singled in the fourth, but the Yankee shortstop was promptly retired on a double play. In the first five innings, Feller pitched to only 15 men, three an inning. Red Ruffing suffered his third defeat against two victories. It was Feller's fifth win and his second straight over New York.

Cleveland got two runs in the first as Ken Keltner singled with the bases full, scoring Weatherly and Hal Trosky. Weatherly scored again in the third on a sacrifice after leading off with a double. The Tribe added two more in the eighth with two down on Mack's triple and singles by Rollie Hemsley and Feller.

The Yankees, who remain in seventh place, got their lone run in the seventh. Tommy Henrich walked, Joe DiMaggio singled, and Charley Keller flied out, Henrich scoring after the catch.

MINIMUM GRAIN PRICES FIXED TO HALT BIG BREAK

Adopted at Request of Wallace.

Declaring that the war in Europe had created a national market emergency, directors of the Chicago Board of Trade at a special meeting yesterday ordered that no trades be permitted below price levels fixed by the board. The minimums were set at the average prices which prevailed when trading ceased Saturday. The ruling is effective today.

Fred H. Clutton issued minimum price order.

The action of the directors was taken at the suggestion of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, after a week of violent declines which carried the price of wheat down 32¼ to 34⅛ cents and corn 14 to 16¾ cents a bushel from the close on May 12. Similar action was taken by other American grain markets.

Minimums for Various Grains.

The order, issued by Fred H. Clutton, secretary of the board, means that, until further notice, no sales may be made below these quotations:

WHEAT—May, 79; July, 78½; September, 78¼; December, 79¼.

CORN—May, 59¾; July, 59; September, 58½; December, 57¾.

OATS—May, 37½; July, 33¼; September, 31.

RYE—May, 43½; July, 44½; September, 46½.

SOY BEANS—May, 91¾; July, 89½; October, 77.

The price bolstering program does not mean that trades may not be made above the fixed level. Transactions are unrestricted at prices over the minimums. The ruling merely puts a "floor" under prices.

The violent declines in the prices of grains, cotton, hogs, and other leading agricultural products in the last week were estimated to have cost American farmers and the United States government more than one billion dollars thru the lowering of the value of the supplies of agricultural products now on hand or those that will be harvested later in the season.

General Conference Held.

The action of the exchange was taken following a general conference of the directors with 250 representatives of leading Chicago banks, millers, feed manufacturers, corn processors, packers, and stock and grain commission houses. Kenneth L. Smith, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, and officials of the Kansas City, Peoria, Toledo, Milwaukee, and Indianapolis grain exchanges also attended the conference.

Grain futures on the Kansas City, Minneapolis and other American exchanges have been "pegged" at Saturday's closing prices. Acting on orders of the Canadian government the Winnipeg grain exchange Saturday set a minimum price of 71⅝ cents for the July wheat future, or the average closing sales on May 17.

The invasion of Holland and Belgium by Germany, following the conquest of Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Denmark, and Norway and the blocking of international trade with Sweden and other countries were blamed by grain traders as the main factors in causing the demoralization in North American grain markets.

Large Markets Are Lost.

Grain trade experts estimated that the war in Europe had resulted in the closing of a market for about 130,000,000 bushels of wheat, 15,000,000 bushels or more of rye, and 150,000,000 bushels of corn. Millions of bushels of grain sold for shipment to Holland and Belgium were understood to have been thrown on the world's markets during the last week.

The drastic decline in prices of wheat and other grains last week followed an irregular advance which started Sept. 1 at the outbreak of war. That upturn lifted wheat 44 cents and corn about 22½ cents a bushel. Speculators bought heavily as the market rose, remembering the extremely high prices which prevailed during the 1914-'18 war.

But there is a decided difference in the situation existing now and at that time. During the war Scandinavian countries and Holland were neutral and able to purchase large amounts of wheat and other grains in surplus producing countries. These markets are now lost, probably for the duration of the war, it is said.

Watch Mediterranean Situation.

The grain trade also is watching political developments in the Mediterranean area with anxious eyes. Should hostilities break out there, the strife would tend to curtail business with countries which normally import about 50,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Yesterday's establishment of minimum prices for grain futures is the second time the Chicago exchange has taken such action. A minimum wheat price of 92⅛ cents a bushel was put in effect from Aug. 1 to 15, 1933, at the time of the collapse from the "inflation boom." In 1917, world war year, the directors ordered trading in wheat and corn futures suspended and set a settlement price at which all outstanding contracts had to be liquidated.

RIVER TRAFFIC AT CHICAGO SETS NEW HIGH MARK

Year's Volume Rises to 4,380,000 Tons.

Freight carried on the Illinois waterway into and out of Chicago last year amounted to 4,380,000 tons, an increase of 689,000 tons over the 1938 total. Tonnage for the entire waterway was 5,500,000 tons, against 4,446,000 tons in the preceding year. Both 1939 totals, which set all-time records, were disclosed yesterday in statistics compiled by Maj. Samuel N. Karrick, United States district engineer for Chicago.

The 4,380,000 tons included 914,000 tons by deep draft traffic, that which enters the Chicago river from the lake in large boats.

Total traffic for the port of Chicago, including both Illinois waterway and lake shipping, was 16,751,760 tons last year, compared with 13,354,884 in 1938. The increase was chiefly the result of a substantial gain in river coal and grain traffic and lake ore and coal movements.

Imports From Canada.

Chicago last year imported from Canada 198,000 tons, of which 165,000 tons were newsprint, against 190,000 and 153,000 in 1938. Exports to Canada from Chicago totaled 588,000 tons, which included 364,000 tons of corn and 144,000 tons of soy beans. Declines in grain movements resulted in the decrease from the total of 1,570,000 in the preceding year.

Imports from overseas, mostly in Norwegian vessels, amounted to 34,000 tons compared with 15,000 in 1938. Cod liver oil accounted for 984 tons of the incoming cargoes in 1939. Exports abroad via the lakes were 32,000 tons, only slightly less than the year before. In these shipments were 610 tons of feathers, 32 tons of waxed wrapping paper, 25 tons of curtain rods, and 139 tons of books.

Chicago received from the lakes 9,740,000 tons and shipped 1,178,000 tons exclusive of coastwise and foreign traffic. In 1938 the figures were 6,072,000 and 1,774,000.

Some of Main Receipts.

Some of the products shipped into Chicago last year were: corn, 370,000 tons; beer, 1,490; other alcoholic beverages, 1,119; sugar, 37,000; peat moss, 33; fly paper, 29; coal, 1,583,000; gasoline, 126,000; sand and gravel, 987,000; sulphur, 41,000, and medicine, 31. Outgoing were 132 tons of toys; 68 tons of bicycles and parts, agricultural equipment, canned meats and shoes.

Freight carried on the entire Illinois waterway in the last five years follows: 1935, 1,695,000; 1936, 2,171,000; 1937, 3,690,000; 1938, 4,446,000, and 1939, 5,500,000.

Of the 5,500,000 tons, 5,161,000 were bulk freight; 338,000 tons, package freight, and 175 tons rafted logs. The total includes 1,728,000 tons of coal; 1,554,000 sand and gravel; 620,000 gasoline; 503,000 corn; 164,000 limestone; 139,000 waste rock; 111,000 wheat; 71,000 fuel oil; 58,000 soy beans; 51,000 steel; 46,000 molasses; 42,000 sulphur; 40,000 coal tar, and 38,000 sugar.

Auto Fire, Theft Insurance Rates Cut; Collision Higher

Changes in automobile insurance rates, including reductions on fire and theft coverage and an increase in collision premium rates, were announced yesterday for Illinois by Ernest Palmer, director of insurance. The changes will go into effect May 27.

Ernest Palmer.

Palmer said the reductions will more than offset the increases and result in a net saving of about $500,000 in the next year for policyholders. He said he could not give exact details immediately.

In announcing the increase in rates on collision insurance, Palmer said companies had been writing this type of insurance at a loss for several years. He described the increase as "moderate."

Palmer issued the following statement:

"There will be substantial reductions in fire and theft insurance rates, loss ratios having been low. Improvement in car construction has substantially reduced fire losses and the work of law enforcement bodies has greatly reduced car thefts. Collision insurance, however, has been written at a loss by insurance companies for several years, and, in fairness to the companies, there will be a moderate increase in these rates.

"The total saving to citizens of the state by reason of this readjustment of rates, will be at least $500,000 in the next 12 months, based on the number of insured autos that were included in the tabulation for the previous 12 months."

STOCKS RECEIVE BLITZ STROKE IN SELLING ATTACK

Decline in Average Widest Since 1933.

New York, May 19 (AP).—Wall street's own version of a "blitz" stroke—the destructive outburst of selling in security and commodity markets last week—made another episode in a drama of economic change.

Even against the last decade's background of tremendous financial and trade upheavals, the collapse of speculative markets on the news of the German dash thru the Low Countries into France stood out as an historic incident for the street.

The week's decline in listed share values, measured by the Associated Press composite price of 60 stocks, was the widest for any similar period since July, 1933.

Unlike Break of 1933.

Unlike the 1933 break, however, the war break was not preceded by a great spree of public speculation in a bull swing. For months the stock market had been wedged in a narrow range. Traders stuck to sideline shelters, cautiously eyeing news from the western front for a hint of real war.

There were flutterings of uneasiness when the allies were forced out of southern Norway. But the rout of the bull position was postponed until the momentum of the Nazi thrust into the Low Countries became evident and a shower of selling from Amsterdam margin accounts dispelled the long calm in the market place.

Then the typical sequence of a bear spiral was enacted. As the break thru the area of stabilization widened, the position of many margin traders was endangered. Distress selling from such accounts sped the decline. A collapse in grains interacted upon security markets. The old circle of liquidation was witnessed.

Many Explanations Given.

The usual abundance of explanations blossomed in market circles to account for the collapse. Possibility of early peace, loss of export markets, the United States shift toward a war economy and higher taxes were some of the causes advanced.

Foreign selling may have been a considerable factor, brokers conceded. Amsterdam for centuries was a world center of speculation and trade. It was a large holder of American shares.

In addition, it appeared, the spectacle of happenings in Belgium and Holland caused selling from Switzerland and other places under the shadow of war.

WILLKIE SEEKS SEC ACCORD IN UTILITY'S CASE

New York, May 18 [Special].—Wendell L. Willkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, announced today that he would make "every sincere effort possible" to work out the integration problem at round table conferences with members of the Securities and Exchange commission.

In the corporation's 1939 annual report to stockholders, Willkie, in discussing the so-called "death sentence" section of the public utility holding company act, placed the responsibility for any court test of the integration section of the act squarely up to the SEC.

"Whether we will seek to make a constitutional test of the act and of any order issued by the commission will depend entirely upon the possibility of working out with the commission a plan which does not lead to the destruction of property values, but does lead to the advancement of the interest of the corporation, its investors and consumers and the public," Willkie said.

AMERICAN GOLD STOCK NEARING 19 BILLION MARK

Washington, D. C., May 18 [Special].—The treasury's gold stock, already the largest in world history, will go over the 19 billion dollar mark in the next few days if acquisitions continue at the recent rate. In the five days ended last Wednesday $45,000,000 was added, putting the total at $18,949,000,000.

With reports of allied reverses in Europe, America's holdings of more than two-thirds of the world's monetary stocks of gold become a question of increasing concern in discussions among officials here. The question is being asked whether a Nazi victory might not seriously jeopardize the value of the metal, which is a bulwark of capitalism and an avowed target of German revolutionary conquests.

The treasury's gold stock passed the 17 billion mark Oct. 20 and the 18 billion mark in the first week of February. Thus, in less than seven months the treasury has gained 2 billions dollars in gold.

Pet Milk Company's Loss for Quarter Is $87,611

ENGLAND AND FRANCE ORDER $50,000,000 OF NEW DOUGLAS PLANES

Santa Monica, Cal., May 19 (AP).—The Anglo-French purchasing commission has placed orders for $50,000,000 worth of Douglas attack bombers, Donald W. Douglas, president of the Douglas Aircraft company, announced today. He said half the planes would be made by the Boeing Aircrft company of Seattle, Wash., under Douglas license.

The bomber is a twin engined, high winged, all metal monoplane powered by Wright 205B engines, and claimed by the manufacturer to be the fastest ship of its kind in the air today.

"Production of a large number of identical airplanes in widely separated localities will go a long way toward initiating President Roosevelt's new national defense program by spreading employment, reducing overhead, and increasing our combined production capacity and industrial efficiency for times of national emergency," Douglas said.

FOREIGN BUYING CAUSES UPTURN IN STEEL TRADE

Steel orders actually placed or being negotiated on behalf of Britain and France have encouraged domestic consumers to expand their purchases, the magazine Steel reported yesterday.

Domestic buying, altho more liberal, is being made at a conservative rate, and the steel market has not attained the exceptional proportions of last fall's war purchasing, the review said. United States defense plans are expected to give the market a gradual lift when more fully developed.

Chicago and Pittsburgh, the leading steel making centers, accounted for much of last week's improvement in national production to 70 per cent of capacity. Operations in Chicago rose 4½ points to a level equal to the national average, and those at Pittsburgh gained 3½ points to 65 per cent, the magazine reported.

Railroad Freight Claim Sessions Open Tomorrow

SUPREME COURT MAY DECIDE ON COAL ACT TODAY

Washington, D. C., May 19 (AP). — The Supreme court may pass tomorrow on the constitutionality of the 1937 national bituminous coal act, designed to stabilize the industry by fixing minimum prices and regulating marketing. A three judge federal court at Little Rock, Ark., sustained the coal act against a challenge by the Sunshine Anthracite Coal company of Clarksville, Ark.

The coal litigation is one of 23 cases awaiting decision before the tribunal adjourns for the summer on June 3. Another important controversy is whether a labor union which engages in a sitdown strike is liable for damages under the 1890 Sherman antitrust act.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

by HOMER CHEISZ

Plans Go Awry.

May 19, 1940.

THIS has been a difficult season for farmers to plan their spring planting schedules and then make the plans work. The late spring has delayed field work. Oats were seeded later than usual on many farms and corn planting has been held up by cool weather.

Workers at the Du Page county farm say the delays likely will result in a piling up of work next month when corn may need cultivating just when the first cutting of alfalfa is ready for harvest. These men are of the opinion that careful planning of farm work is more essential than ever in seasons like this in order to take full advantage of good weather whenever it comes.

Bad Planning Means Failure.

The farmer is a working man, but, unlike many other working men, he has to plan as well as work. Farm failure is as often from bad planning as from lack of work. It is essential to get started on each of the farm operations at as near the right time as the weather and other conditions will permit.

A farmer is likely to have his machinery out of order and lose vital days. He is tired at night and planning does not come as easy to him as to a superintendent.

Altho farmers always are interested in improving their methods of producing a crop or of raising a kind of live stock, there is much more than this involved in organizing and operating farms at a profit. A farmer may excel in one or a few lines of farm work, but do so poorly in others that the gains from the good work are offset by the losses from the poor.

Plans May Need Changing.

The success of a farm often depends largely upon the skill of the farmer in organizing his business so as to follow good farm practices and keep in balance the different factors that influence farm earnings. The farmer's skill in these matters may have more to do with farm profits than the size of the farm or the fertility of its soil.

Farmers find they must use a good deal of initiative in making decisions, changing them when necessary, and acting upon them with intelligence. This is especially true when it is necessary to shift plans for planting and harvesting crops to meet changing weather conditions.

A successful farmer must be a skilled workman and a good business executive. In addition, he must have a working knowledge of many branches of science. He must know crop and live stock production, soil management, insect and disease control, and marketing. He also must be able to meet constantly changing conditions and methods for, contrary to popular opinion, nowhere are changes more rapid and varied than on the farm.

Weygand Named Supreme Commander of Allied Land Forces—Battle Raging Around St. Quentin

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

[Associated Press Wirephoto: Sent yesterday from Berlin by radio.]

Belgian soldiers being led to rear after capture in fighting around Liege, according to caption approved by German censor. In background are German mechanized units.

[Associated Press Wirephoto: Sent yesterday from Berlin by radio.]

Horizontally ruled areas in the map are those which Germans claim to have seized yesterday in advance of the preceding day's battle line (heavy line). They boasted their troops were now only 75 miles from Paris. Map also locates principal highways which might be used by mechanized invaders.
